SENATORS WIN 7 TO 5

TIGHT TO KEEP A SLIM LEAD

BOSTON, Sept. 27—Washington, mathematically cinched the American league pennant here this afternoon when the Senators defeated the Boston Red Sox 7 to 5 in the second game of the series.

As the Yankees were defeated by the Athletics, the Senators gained a full game and increased their lead to two games. In this position they can't get worts than a tie if they lose the two remaining games with the Red Sox and if the Yankees win two more from the Athletics. The Senators can cinch the pennant by winning Monday's game in Boston.

FENWAY PARK, BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Fighting to maintain their slim lead of one game and to ward off the challenging Yankees, the Washington Senators tied up with the Boston Red Sox in the second game of the series here this afternoon.

With three more games to play the Senators need three more victories to cinch the pennant. The defeat of Walter Johnson in yesterday's game was a bad blow but there were no signs of discouragement among the players when they took the field.

The stands were well filled with a crowd of 20,000 fans. Lefty Mogridge, former Yankee pitcher, was selected to work for the Senators and the Red Sox went out behind Howard Ehmke, the best pitcher on the club.

DAVIS GROWING MORE MILITANT

Democratic Nominee Goes to Washington to Confer With Party Leaders on Progress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—More militant and confident of election than ever, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, came to Washington today to confer with party leaders over the progress of the campaign.

Davis met Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee and other party leaders. At 2:30 p. m. he will attend a reception given in his honor by the Davis and Bryan club of Washington.

Davis wound up his campaign in West Virginia last night with a speech at Bluefield, jit which he flatly announced himself as the exponent of all the principles of Woodrow Wilson.

Speaking of the democratic party and the sort of administration that he proposes to give, if elected, Davis deplored the foreign policy of the republican administration as "cowardly".

"Speaking thru the mighty voice of Woodrow Wilson, the democratic party gave men thruout the world the hope that a new day had dawned; that the nations of mankind were to war no more; and that in the great council chamber of the world those causes of discord which had stained the surface of the earth with blood would be worked out in the calm atmosphere of reason and council," he said.

"If that not be safety, there is no safety—save the ignoble of those who believe that the only way for protection is to imitate the turtle and stay within one's shell.

"In place of the man who says 'I dare not', I wish to see my country men led by the man who says 'I dare'."

THE CAMPAIGN DAY BY DAY

Presidental Candidates in Washington Saturday—Smith's Speaking Limited.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Washington held all three presidential candidates today, John W. Davis, arrival from West Virginia, where he has been on a short speaking tour, completing the roll. Davis went into conference with party leaders, where it was understood the plans for the democratic nominee's New England trip will be gone over.

Senator LaFollette, professed to be much encouraged by reports from many sections of the country, talked with his son Robert Jr., who has been campaigning in the west about final details of the senator's trip to the west coast.

President Coolidge had no announced political appointments for the day.

Democratic managers announced that the speaking engagements of Gov. Al Smith of New York would necessarily be limited as a result of his renomination yesterday. He is now scheduled to speak only in the New England states and New Jersey, altho he may get out to Chicago.

Encouraged by his reception in Minnesota, General Dawes, the republican vice presidential candidate today went into Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette's home state.

HEAR CANDIDATES SPEAK

Nominees for Legislature and Other Offices Talk to Democratic Luncheon Club.

The Democratic Luncheon club listened to a number of candidates for the state legislature and officers in Lancaster county, besides an address by Wendell Berge on the principles of the Democratic party, Saturday noon at the Grand hotel. About fifty members were present. Frank Mills presided.

The first speaker was Mrs. C. S. Paine, who was introduced as "Senator" Paine. Her brief talk was followed by remarks from W. F. Dale, Mrs. C. F. Spencer, Mrs. P. T. McGerr and Wade Wilson, all candidates for the state legislature and R. F. Mars, candidate for county commissioner. C. M. Skiles spoke of the republican fear of the "menace of Bryanism" and of Charley Bryan becoming president. "They might go farther and do worse," he said.

Wendell Berge, who had been appointed by the club at a previous meeting to organize a Davis and Bryan club at the University of Nebraska, reported a membership of 100 in the new club. He said the republicans also had a club on the campus, whose members were each wearing a brass tack as an emblem of party loyalty. He said the tacks form an attractive ornament, but evidently sent pricks into the conscience as the wearers were beginning to have dark circles under the eyes.

Mr. Berge predicted success for the democratic party because of the special privileges and corruption of the present administration. He held the party in power responsible for all evils of recent years. "Common honesty is the biggest need of the government," he said.

RIDES BEAUTIFUL RACE

Clarence Kummer on Laakin, Who Won Aqueduct, Never Made Mistake.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Sept. 27.—Clarence Kummer rode a beautiful race on Ladkin this afternoon and never made a mistake, winning the $25,000 race. Ladkin broke second away from the barrier with Epinard in the lead by a half length and Zev running third. Ladkin was running easily behind the French colt at the half but My Own had closed in on the faltering Zev and was running third. Zev picked up again in the stretch and Kummer let Ladkin have his head, the Belmont taking it nicely and moving into first place to win handily.

The winners time was only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Wise Counsellor, the winner of the first international race at Belmont park was never a contender behind the two colts that he had beaten over the six furloughs distance. Epinard made a game effort in the stretch but he wasn't up to the fast pace that Ladkin was setting and he finished a half length behind the big chestnut.

INCH OF RAIN AT OMAHA

Frost Over Practically Entire State Is Predicted by Forecaster.

OMAHA, Sept. 27.—Frost over practically the entire state was predicted for tonight by the weather bureau here. Frost with a forty degree temperature was reported at North Platte this morning.

It snowed at Lander, Wyo., and Bismarck, N. D., reported a killing frost last night.

A little more than one inch of rain fell in Omaha, a thirty mile wind blew most of yesterday and last night.

Tonight's predicted frost will be heavy enough to considerably damage the corn crop, the bureau said.

Detroit News: A political expert observes that our distinguished presidents, including Washington, Jefferson, Jackson and Roosevelt, talked voluminously. Since the expert mentioned is not a Coolidge man, possibly you get his drift.

CLEMENCEAU GETTING OLD

FRENCH "TIGER" WILL BE EIGHTY-THREE SUNDAY.

Will Spend Rest of Days in Bleak Home on Coast, Completing Laborious Philosophical Work.

(Copyright, 1924, by United Press.)

ST. VINCENT, SUR JARD, France, Sept. 27.—Georges Clemenceau, "father of Victory" will be eighty three tomorrow.

Like Cincinnatus of old, after saving his country, he has come back to the soil and the scenes of his boyhood.

The correspondent sought him here in his hermit-like retreat beside the open sea. "The Tiger" said he was thru forever with political life.

Clemenceau will spend the remainder of his days completing a laborious philosophical work to be published only after his death. This he intends to be his literary legacy to posterity. Beyond the fact that it embodies his philosophy and ideals of "man and life and the things thereof" he was reticent about his work.

The first volume is complete in its first draft and the former premier expects to put in two years re-drafting it. Then he will work for eight or ten years on two other volumes—

"After which I will rest and grow old."

The tiger chuckled. It is his favorite joke.

Despite half a century of bitter political battles, Clemenceau today is hale and amazingly active. He now lives here most of the year around in a one story shack approached by a narrow path thru a cabbage patch.

The cottage looks out on a bleak stretch of Atlantic, a few yards from its door, one of the loneliest spots on the continent. It is swept by winds or drifting rains continuously.

With his valet, Albert, and an aged Vendeean cook, the tiger lives the simple life. He daily visits the markets in Sabledonnes with a basket on his arm, purchases his own food and carries it home.

Clemenceau busies himself with a pitiful attempt at gardening, but the soil is poor and sandy and it is with difficulty that he can raise a few straggling flowers and tomatoes. Brush wood mats are piled against one side of the house to keep the winds from whistling thru the shack. Nearby there is a brushwood leaned, facing the sea, where Clemenceau sits for hours watching the waves.

The tiger vigorously refused to talk politics.

"I'm thru. My talking would only do harm. It probably would do no good. I can see how things are going, but they'll go that way anyhow," he grumbled.

"I told them long ago how things would go. Now they're going."

Then the veteran statesman's humor changed.

"But you came all this way to see me. Stay and have luncheon with me. We'll talk of everything except politics."

Wearing his famous three cornered "poilu" cap, the familiar grey gloves and baggy frock coat, the tiger conducted the correspondent over his tiny property, proudly demonstrating how he was forcing vegetation to grow on nothing but sand and water and rotten sea weed.

During the frugal luncheon of sole, mutton and cauliflower, served in the narrow kitchen, Clemenceau told how he works on his book.

"I'm in bed every night by 7:30 or 8 o'clock," he said. "Then I wake up about 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, get up, do some light gymnastic exercises and work by the light of a kerosene lamp with the waves roaring outside and generally with wind and rain buffeting the house.

"I love it. This morning I got up at 1 o'clock and worked until half past four and then went back to bed again."

"How do I keep so well? I eat very little and very simple food and exercise moderately. I sleep as much as I need to, and I work and above all—I don't worry.

"I am one of the few men in the world who is free—absolutely free. I can see only the people I want. I can go when and where I like and do about as I like.

"I don't read the newspapers any more. I pay little attention to the world.

"I have my own thoughts. When a man has gone thru what I've gone thru, he has plenty to think about."

But this man who fought in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and directed the making of peace after the world war, nearly half a century later, could not be completely isolated.

Thousands of friends remembered his birthday. Cablegrams and telegrams from all over the world, signed by some of the big names came constantly to his little Vendee retreat.

ELECT BRING PRESSURE

"Gold Coast" Residents Do Not Want Names Published on Bootlegger's List.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Many of the elect of Chicago's "gold coast" brought pressure to bear on police officials to suppress the list of customers found in the rooms of Harry J. Callan, bootlegger de luxe, who was shot down late yesterday almost in the heart of the exclusive residential section. Callan may die, and police are hunting for Leon Tarr, named by Callan.

The shooting climaxed a quarrel over a wealthy customer. Callan said Tarr double-crossed him in a $7,000 deal. They arranged a meeting in Lincoln park to settle the affair, and Callan fell with a bullet thru the left lung.

Callan maintained rooms at a fashionable downtown hotel, transacting his liquor deals from there. He said he served many prominent residents of the "gold coast," his profits running over $10,000 monthly. A list of names was seized in his rooms and efforts are being made to suppress it.

WHEELER IS FOR NORRIS.

OMAHA, Sept. 27.—Wheeler in his noon day speech paid great tribute to republican Senator Norris of Nebraska, whom he declared may soon endorse the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket.

"It would be a great calamity if Norris is not elected by you," Wheeler said.

"No danger of that," shouted a man in the rear of the hall.

When a call for funds was made by a preliminary speaker, a shower of silver dollars rained down on the stage.

HURTS DEMOCRATS MOST

State Treasurer Finds Big Majority of LaFollette Supporters Former Jeffersonians.

State Treasurer Robinson has returned to Lincoln after having toured many counties in company with republican candidates for state office. George A. Williams of Fairmont, candidate for lieutenant governor, returned with Mr. Robinson. Alvin D. Linch of the state treasurer's office force, accompanied the campaigning party as driver. Railway Commissioner Taylor and Monie Munn were at Wayne when the state tereasurer left the party. Mr. Robinson said there is considerable LaFollette sentiment in some localities, but this is usually offset by the fact that seven out of nine LaFollette men were formerly democrats. He believes the LaFollette vote will diminish as election day approaches, but at present he believes Davis would be third in the race in Nebraska.

ERNEST REED FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

DAVIS GROWING MORE MILITANT

Democratic Nominee Goes to Washington to Confer With Party Leaders on Progress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—More militant and confident of election than ever, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, came to Washington today to confer with party leaders over the progress of the campaign.

Davis met Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the democratic national committee and other party leaders. At 2:30 p. m. he will attend a reception given in his honor by the Davis and Bryan club of Washington.

Davis wound up his campaign in West Virginia last night with a speech at Bluefield, in which he flatly announced himself as the exponent of all the principles of Woodrow Wilson.

Speaking of the democratic party and the sort of administration that he proposes to give, if elected, Davis deplored the foreign policy of the republican administration as "cowardly".

"Speaking thru the mighty voice of Woodrow Wilson, the democratic party gave men thruout the world the hope that a new day had dawned; that the nations of mankind were to war no more; and that in the great council chamber of the world those causes of discord which had stained the surface of the earth with blood would be worked out in the calm atmosphere of reason and council," he said.

"If that not be safety, there is no safety—save the ignoble of those who believe that the only way for protection is to imitate the turtle and stay within one's shell.

"In place of the man who says 'I dare not', I wish to see my country men led by the man who says 'I dare'."

THE CAMPAIGN DAY BY DAY

Presidental Candidates in Washington Saturday—Smith's Speaking Limited.

Senator LaFollette, professed to be much encouraged by reports from many sections of the country, talked with his son Robert Jr., who has been campaigning in the west about final details of the senator's trip to the west coast.

President Coolidge had no announced political appointments for the day.

Democratic managers announced that the speaking engagements of Gov. Al Smith of New York would necessarily be limited as a result of his renomination yesterday. He is now scheduled to speak only in the New England states and New Jersey, altho he may get out to Chicago.

Encouraged by his reception in Minnesota, General Dawes, the republican vice presidential candidate today went into Wisconsin, Senator LaFollette's home state.

HEAR CANDIDATES SPEAK

Nominees for Legislature and Other Offices Talk to Democratic Luncheon Club.

The Democratic Luncheon club listened to a number of candidates for the state legislature and officers in Lancaster county, besides an address by Wendell Berge on the principles of the Democratic party, Saturday noon at the Grand hotel. About fifty members were present Frank Mills presided.

The first speaker was Mrs. C. S. Paine, who was introduced as "Senator" Paine. Her brief talk was followed by remarks from W. F. Dale, Mrs. C. F. Spencer, Mrs. P. T. McGerr and Wade Wilson, all candidates for the state legislature and R. F. Mara, candidate for county commissioner. C. M. Skiles spoke of the republican fear of the "menace of Bryanism" and of Charley Bryan becoming president "They might go farther and do worse," he said.

Wendell Berge, who had been appointed by the club at a previous meeting to organize a Davis and Bryan club at the University of Nebraska, reported a membership of 100 in the new club. He said the republicans also had a club on the campus, whose members were each wearing a brass tack as an emblem of party loyalty. He said the tacks form an attractive ornament, but evidently sent pricks into the conscience as the wearers were beginning to have dark circles under the eyes.

Mr. Berge predicted success for the democratic party because of the special privileges and corruption of the present administration. He held the party in power responsible for all evils of recent years. "Common honesty is the biggest need of the government," he said.

RIDES BEAUTIFUL RACE

Clarence Kummer on Laakin, Who Won Aqueduct, Never Made Mistake.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Sept. 27.—Clarence Kummer rode a beautiful race on Ladkin this afternoon and never made a mistake, winning the $25,000 race. Ladkin broke second away from the barrier with Epinard in the lead by a half length and Zev running third Ladkin was running easily behind the French colt at the half but My Own had closed in on the faltering Zev and was running third. Zev picked up again in the stretch and Kummer let Ladkin have his head, the Belmont taking it nicely and moving into first place to win handily.

The winners time was only two-fifths of a second slower than the track record.

Wise Counsellor, the winner of the first international race at Belmont park was never a contender behind the two colts that he had beaten over the six furloughs distance. Epinard made a game effort in the stretch but he wasn't up to the fast pace that Ladkin was setting and he finished a half length behind the big chestnut.

CLEMENCEAU GETTING OLD

FRENCH "TIGER" WILL BE EIGHTY-THREE SUNDAY.

Will Spend Rest of Days in Bleak Home on Coast, Completing Laborious Philosophical Work.

(Copyright, 1924, by United Press.)

ST. VINCENT, SUR JARD, France, Sept. 27.—Georges Clemenceau, "father of Victory" will be eighty three tomorrow.

Like Cincinnatus of old, after saving his country, he has come back to the soil and the scenes of his boyhood.

The correspondent sought him here in his hermit-like retreat beside the open sea. "The Tiger" said he was thru forever with political life.

Clemenceau will spend the remainder of his days completing a laborious philosophical work to be published only after his death. This he intends to be his literary legacy to posterity. Beyond the fact that it embodies his philosophy and ideals of "man and life and the things thereof" he was reticent about his work.

The first volume is complete in its first draft and the former premier expects to put in two years re-drafting it. Then he will work for eight or ten years on two other volumes—

"After which I will rest and grow old."

The tiger chuckled. It is his favorite joke.

Despite half a century of bitter political battles, Clemenceau today is hale and amazingly active. He now lives here most of the year around in a one story shack approached by a narrow path thru a cabbage patch.

The cottage looks out on a bleak stretch of Atlantic, a few yards from its door, one of the loneliest spots on the continent. It is swept by winds or drifting rains continuously.

With his valet, Albert, and an aged Vendeean cook, the tiger lives the simple life. He daily visits the markets in Sabledonnes with a basket on his arm, purchases his own food and carries it home.

Clemenceau busies himself with a pitiful attempt at gardening, but the soil is poor and sandy and it is with difficulty that he can raise a few straggling flowers and tomatoes. Brush wood mats are piled against one side of the house to keep the winds from whistling thru the shack. Nearby there is a brushwood leaned, facing the sea, where Clemenceau sits for hours watching the waves.

The tiger vigorously refused to talk politics.

"I'm thru. My talking would only do harm. It probably would do no good. I can see how things are going, but they'll go that way anyhow," he grumbled.

"I told them long ago how things would go. Now they're going."

Then the veteran statesman's humor changed.

"But you came all this way to see me. Stay and have luncheon with me. We'll talk of everything except politics."

Wearing his famous three cornered "polku" cap, the familiar grey gloves and baggy frock coat, the tiger conducted the correspondent over his tiny property, proudly demonstrating how he was forcing vegetation to grow on nothing but sand and water and rotten sea weed.

During the frugal luncheon of sole, mutton and cauliflower, served in the narrow kitchen, Clemenceau told how he works on his book.

"I'm in bed every night by 7:30 or 8 o'clock," he said. "Then I wake up about 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning, get up, do some light gymnastic exercises and work by the light of a kerosene lamp with the waves roaring outside and generally with wind and rain buffeting the house.

"I love it. This morning I got up at 1 o'clock and worked until half past four and then went back to bed again."

"How do I keep so well? I eat very little and very simple food and exercise moderately I sleep as much as I need to, and I work and above all—I don't worry.

"I am one of the few men in the world who is free—absolutely free. I can see only the people I want. I can go when and where I like and do about as I like

"I don't read the newspapers any more I pay little attention to the world

"I have my own thoughts When a man has gone thru what I've gone thru, he has plenty to think about."

But this man who fought in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and directed the making of peace after the world war, nearly half a century later, could not be completely isolated

Thousands of friends remembered his birthday Cablegrams and telegrams from all over the world, signed by some of the biggest names came constantly to his little Vendee retreat

ELECT BRING PRESSURE

"Gold Coast" Residents Do Not Want Names Published on Bootlegger's List.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—Many of the elect of Chicago's "gold coast" brought pressure to bear on police officials to suppress the list of customers found in the rooms of Harry J. Callan, bootlegger de luxe, who was shot down late yesterday almost in the heart of the exclusive residential section. Callan may die, and police are hunting for Leon Tarr, named by Callan

The shooting climaxed a quarrel over a wealthy customer. Callan said Tarr double-crossed him in a $7,000 deal. They arranged a meeting in Lincoln park to settle the affair, and Callan fell with a bullet thru the left lung.

Callan maintained rooms at a fashionable downtown hotel, transacting his liquor deals from there. He said he served many prominent residents of the "gold coast." his profits running over $10,000 monthly. A list of names was seized in his rooms and efforts are being made to suppress it.

WHEELER IS FOR NORRIS.

OMAHA, Sept 27—Wheeler in his noon day speech paid great tribute to republican Senator Norris of Nebraska, whom he declared may soon endorse the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket.

"It would be a great calamity if Norris is not elected by you," Wheeler said.

"No danger of that," shouted a man in the rear of the hall.

When a call for funds was made by a preliminary speaker, a shower of silver dollars rained down on the stage.

HURTS DEMOCRATS MOST

State Treasurer Finds Big Majority of LaFollette Supporters Former Jeffersonians.

State Treasurer Robinson has returned to Lincoln after having toured many counties in company with republican candidates for state office George A. Williams of Fairmont, candidate for lieutenant governor, returned with Mr. Robinson. Alvin D. Linch of the state treasurer's office force, accompanied the campaigning party as driver. Railway Commissioner Taylor and Monte Munn were at Wayne when the state treasurer left the party. Mr. Robinson said there is considerable LaFollette sentiment in some localities, but this is usually offset by the fact that seven out of nine LaFollette men were formerly democrats. He believes the LaFollette vote will diminish as election day approaches, but at present he believes Davis would be third in the race in Nebraska.

TARIFF IS IN THE WAY

Wheeler Declares That It Holds Farmers Back.

SPENDS DAY IN THE STATE

Progressive Urges Tillers of Soil to Action.

Cannot Regain European Markets as Long as Republican Duties Hold, Nominee Asserts.

OMAHA, Sept. 27.—The republican tariff prevents the farmers from regaining their European markets, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, declared today as he swept westward on his tour thru the western farm belt. Wheeler promised repeal of the high tariff if the independents are successful.

"You have nothing to say about the price you pay for any product you sell or any article you buy," he told his farmer hearers. "If you controlled your own industry a tariff might help.

"The American Woolen company does one of two things when it produces more than we can consume here. It shuts down, or if the tariff is high enough, it raises its prices to the American consumer so it can afford to dump its surplus on the European market below cost if necessary.

"But you farmers can only buy everything on a highly protected market and sell everything on a free trade market.

"If President Coolidge had broken his silence during the last session of congress, he could have given the farmers of this country temporary relief at last, that would have aided you until Europe got back on its feet."

Wheeler predicts that the progressive ticket will carry Iowa by 90,000 votes at least. His state leaders told him that Senator Smith W. Brookhart, the progressive republican, who may shortly endorse the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket is assured of a majority from 100,000 to 300,000.

The progressive national ticket will run a little behind Brookhart, the district workers told Wheeler.

After a speech here Wheeler will move to Lincoln, home town of the democratic vice presidential nominee, Charles W. Bryan, for a night talk. Sunday he advances to Denver."

Wheeler gave the highest praise to Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska.

"Senator Norris is recognized by republicans and democrats alike as one of the really big men in the senate," Wheeler said. "He has all the attributes of greatness—honesty, courage, ability and determination."

Wheeler declared that LaFollette will carry Minnesota and Iowa beyond a doubt. "We will carry Ohio as well, and we have better than a fighting chance to win in Illinois."

Senator Wheeler has cancelled all social engagements and banquets during the rest of his trip. He did not leave his private car here until it was time to go to the auditorium. He appeared tired.

OMAHA, Sept. 27.—Worn out by his strenuous campaigning of the past few days Senator Burton K. Wheeler, independent vice presidential nominee, was sound asleep in his stateroom when his train reached here at 8:40 a. m.

A large delegation of LaFollette supporters were at the station to greet Wheeler, but the senator left instructions that he was not to be disturbed until 9:30.

Wheeler will speak at the auditorium here at 2 p. m. He then goes to Lincoln for an address tonight.

RATE FOR FOOTBALL GAME

Fare and a Half on Union Pacific Next Week to Bring Boosters to Illinois Game.

The Union Pacific expects to contribute to the crowd in the stadium next week by offering reduced rates to Lincoln from all parts of the state. One and one-half fare will be the price of a round trip ticket on sale October 4 and good until October 6, from all points where the fare is $5.50 or less. Farther than that, it would be impossible to come and go back in that time. Illinois plays Nebraska at the stadium on October 4.

FROST MAY COME SOON

WEATHER BUREAU SAYS IT WILL STRIKE STATE.

If Heavy It May Do Considerable Damage to Corn That Has Been Slow to Ripen.

Light frost, following a rain that covered parts of the state Friday night and Saturday morning, was predicted by the weather bureau Saturday morning. It was indicated that the frost will be light in eastern Nebraska. Heavier frost is anticipated in the west and north.

Thirty-seven degrees at Culbertson was the lowest Nebraska temperature shown on the morning reports. The highest low temperature was 51 degrees at Auburn. Friday the highest temperature reported was 87 at Red Cloud, while Hastings and O'Neill reported 80 and Lincoln 82. Rather strong winds have covered the state during the past week, aiding some farmers say, in ripening the corn.

Rains of Friday night were heaviest in eastern Nebraska. At Doniphan just across the Nebraska line on the Burlington's Rulo-Atchison line, 4 inches of rain is said to have fallen. The Wymore division of the road reported from one-half an inch to two inches of rain at many of its Nebraska stations. Tecumseh had 1.50 inches while at Sterling a few miles away but one-third as much fell. The rain report showed the heaviest rains in the southeast corner of the state.

The weather bureau recorded the following precipitation:

Ashland .32; Auburn .18; Columbus .02; Hartington .18; Lincoln .10; North Platte .01; Oakdale .02; Omaha 1.02, Tekamah 1.10; Valentine 36

Farmers say that a light frost would do little injury to corn at this time, altho a heavy frost in eastern Nebraska would cause much damage, making a great deal of very soft corn. Some of the corn is out of the way of an ordinary frost, while some of it needs from a week to ten days of usual fall ripening weather to avoid damage.

Jones, in charge of the flight, said that Rittenhouse had at one time attained a speed of 242 1-2 miles an hour.

Victory is assured for the democratic ticket, he said.

BANK CLOSES SECOND TIME

CRAWFORD INSTITUTION IN HANDS OF STATE.

Farmers Bank Had Been Made Depository by Several Receivers of Other Failed Banks.

The Farmers Bank of Crawford was closed Friday evening by the department of trade and commerce. This bank was closed May 2, 1922, by the state department but reopened June 2, of the same year, said Secretary K. C Knudson Saturday, under conditions which seemed to warrant reopening. It has been under close supervision by the department for the past year with E. M. Birdsall in charge as a representative of the department.

The former officers were R. S. L Hanaker, president; James H. Nestor, vice president; F. K. Stapleton, cashier. The bank has been placed in charge of Ray Tierney, state bank examiner, and Fay C. Hill, member of the guaranty fund commission.

Secretary Knudson said during the year following its reopening on June 9, 1922, considerable money was placed on deposit by different receivers of other failed state banks, which amount is still carried as a deposit in the bank. The bank has been unable to liquidate on its loans and discounts and as a consequence has been in hard circumstances ever since it was reopened.

The total amount of deposits at the time of closing was $134,000; loans and discounts, $118,000; cash on hand, $74.

Secretary Knudson said he did not care to say what part of the $134,000 of deposits is money placed in the bank by its receivers of other failed banks. The guaranty fund commission has loaned no money directly to the closed bank but the guaranty fund will sustain a loss in making good the deposits of bank receivers and other depositors.

PROGRESSIVES NOMINATE

Committee in Fourth District Cures Nomnation Defect of J. O. Schmidt for Congress.

John O. Schmidt of Wahoo, was nominated for congress Saturday by the progressive party committee of the fourth congressional district. The committee, represented by W. N. Miller of Ashland, chairman, and George W. Ohne of Ashland, filed a certificate of nomination with Secretary of State Pool. Mr. Schmidt has five days in which to accept. His friends report that he is willing to make the race. He was nominated at the primary election, receiving fifty votes while his opponent on the progressive ticket, Herman Diers of Gresham, received nineteen. Mr. Schmidt did not accept the primary nomination and the progressive party committee now nominates him to fill a vacancy caused by his failure to accept in the first instance.

E. E. Placek of Wahoo, is the democratic nominee and Congressman M. O. McLaughlin of York, the republican nominee in this district.

YOUNG MAN FOUND DEAD

FATHER FINDS BODY OF PAUL TUCKER NEAR BROCK.

Bullet Hole in Temple of Young Farmer Is Evident Cause of Death—May Have Been Suicide.

AUBURN, Neb., Sept. 27.—The body of Paul Tucker, twenty-five, who made his home with his parents on a farm near Brock, was found by his father near a corn crib in the farmyard at 6:30 p. m. Friday. A bullet hole in the right side of his head gave evidence of the probable cause of death.

He had left the house about 11 a. m. Friday, telling his mother that he was going hunting. Because of his late start, his failure to appear at noon did not alarm the parents. The body was accidentally discovered by the father as he was working about the farmyard.

No indications were found that would indicate that he had gone hunting. There is little doubt but what the automatic rifle which he was carrying inflicted the fatal wound but whether it was accidentally discharged or a case of suicide is a matter of speculation. It is known that the young man had complained of severe pains in his head for some months. He was well known in the vicinity of Brock and Julian and was highly respected in the community. He was unmarried.

CITY DOES NOT OBJECT

INTERPOSES NO OBSTACLE TO CONSOLIDATION.

Assistant Attorney General, However, Says Law Forbids One Company Owning Stock in Other.

When the application of the Continental Gas & Electric corporation to the state railway commission, looking toward a merger of the Lincoln Gas & Electric light company with the Lincoln Traction company was called for a hearing before the state railway commission Saturday morning, City Attorney Peterson informed that body that he had canvassed the matter with the city council and that it favored the general purpose of the consolidation. A. Gaylord, city attorney of University Place, said his council thought it was all right, and all that they asked was that the city be protected in its present contracts. It buys current from the gas company.

Hugh Lamaster, assistant attorney general and attorney for the commission, threw the only wrench into the machine. He said that the commission could not give approval to the purchase of the stock of the traction company by the Continental because under the law and court decisions one utility cannot hold stock in another. Before the commission could proceed any further it was also necessary for it to have facts before it with respect to just what it was proposed to do in the way of effecting the consolidation in order that it might determine whether what is proposed is for the public good.

Following statements from the various attorneys, the commission took a recess until afternoon, when it was proposed to question some of the officers of the two companies in order to ascertain more definitely what is proposed to be done. The application asked for two things, an approval of the contract made by officers of hte two companies for the purchase by the Continental of control of the traction company, and the other that the purchase might proceed with the work of consolidation.

Wanted to Know Before Paying.

L. A. Flansburg, attorney for the traction company, and Max V. Beghtol, attorney for the gas company, disagreed in some respects over what the commission was being precisely asked to do. Both were agreed that the commission had no real jurisdiction over hte question of approving the contract, as that is a private matter between the parties, but that it was merely a first step towards the actual consolidation. Mr. Flansburg was of the opinion that if the commission acted favorably on the application in both matters, that would constitute authority to go ahead and consolidate.

Mr. Beghtol did not go that far. He said his clients had made a contract to buy control of the traction company, but before they paid any money on that contract they wanted to know if the real purpose of the purchase, which is the consolidation of the two companies, meets with the approval of the commission. Such approval, he

SAYS CITY GRADING DID $1,000 DAMAGE

Judge Shepherd, Who Previously Notified Council He Would Ask $2,000 Damages, Files Claim.

Judge Fred Shepherd filed a claim Saturday against the city of Lincoln for $1,000 alleged damages to his property at 1004 C street, which he charges was caused by the recent grading and paving of Tenth street from D to B street. The grading work, which was completed on or about September 18, 1924, cut the street abutting on his property several feet below the elevation of his lots, the judge's claim recites. He asserts that the grading creates an up-step to the rear of his house and premises, resulted in the destruction of a sidewalk, left an unsightly dirt bank, destroyed three valuable shade trees and a "fine blue grass lawn."

Previously Judge Shepherd had notified the city council that he would claim $2,000 damages for the alleged damaging results of the grading work. The figure "two" on his claim is marked over with a figure "one" with ink.

WHAT ABOUT LAFOLLETTE?

Land Commissioner Swanson has received letters from political friends in western counties in regard to the political situation. Morrill, Cheyenne, Dawes and Lincoln counties where LaFollette supporters have been reported to sprout on every blade of corn will in fact be carried by Coolidge and Adam McMullen, according to Mr. Swanson's informants. "Somebody must be exaggerating the LaFollette strength" said Commissioner Swanson.

IN NEBRASKA A DAY LATE

Transcontinental Coolidge-Dawes Party Will Hold Eighteen Meetings in Towns Along Lincoln Highway.

The transcontinental Coolidge-Dawes automobile train from Plymouth, will enter Nebraska from the east next Thursday, Oct. 2 and will cross the opposite border enroute to the far west Oct. 3. Because of an unavoidable delay in the east, the caravan is twenty-four hours behind the original schedule which contemplated arrival in Nebraska, Oct. 1. Eighteen meetings will be held in the state. The itinerary:

October 2, night meeting at Omaha.
October 3, Fremont 10:20 a. m., North Bend, 1:40 p. m., Schuyler 3:20 p. m., night meeting at Columbus.
October 4, Central City 10 a. m., Grand Island 12 m., Wood River 4 p. m., night meeting at Kearney.
October 5, Sunday at Kearney.
October 6, Lexington, 9:45 a. m., Gothenburg 3 p. m., night meeting at North Platte.
October 7, Ogallala 9 a. m., Big Springs 11:30 a. m., Chappell 4 p. m., night meeting at Sidney.
October 8, Kimball at 10 a. m.

The caravan left Plymouth, Vt., Sept. 9 on a coast to coast trip. The route carries the train of seven automobiles thru 300 cities and towns. Fifty citizens of Plymouth gathered in the village church, directly across the street from the homestead of Col. John Coolidge, to wish the travelers good luck. Albert W. Jefferis of Omaha, who delivered the Dawes notification address, spoke to the people of Plymouth, at that time and is in charge of the rtain.

O. E. Engler, chairman of the Douglas county republican central committee, has arranged details for a big receptiton for the pilgrims when they reach Omaha.

FARMERS NOT FAILURES

That Is Opinion of George Williams After a Campaigning Survey of Situation.

George A. Williams, dirt farmer and republican candidate for lieutenant governor, resents the implication taht hte farmer is a failure and a bankrupt. After completing a tour of the Third congressional district where he talked agriculture exclusively and met several thousand farmers, he is firm in the belief that his resentment is shared by a great majority of the farmers of Nebraska. He said:

"The farmer must not be classed as a failure. Propaganda indicating that he is bankrupt or on the verge of bankruptcy kicks both ways. The back-kick is the more powerful. While the Nebraska farmer does not feel taht democratic discrimination in price fixing and subsequent deflation worked a tremendous hardship and that some agricultural reforms are yet needed, he wants it done in an orderly and businesslike manner.

"He knows that he is conducting the biggest business in the state. He has been over fed on campaign pledges and promises impossible of fulfillment. Nebraska farmers want only the assurance that they will be given a sound business administration in state's affairs.

"And because the farmers are business men and, generally speaking, good business men, they do not take to the LaFollette ideas. Many of them who usually vote the democratic ticket, will vote for President Coolidge. This does not mean that they no longer are democrats."

WOMAN ADMITS SHE POISONED HUSBAND

Mrs. Ruby Harrington Tate Declares She Administered Dose.

THEN WED BOARDER IN HOUSE

Gave Spouse Poison in His Food Twice.

COUPLE ARE UNDER ARREST

Poisoning Case of Preacher and Mrs. Sweeten Leads to Exhuming of Remains of Joseph Harrington.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 27.—Ruby Harrington Tate, thirty, today in a second confession to Williamson county authorities admitted she gave arsenic twice to her husband, Joseph Harrington causing his death, September 3, in order to allow her to marry Robert Tate.

"I put arsenic in the dinner pail he took to the mines," the woman said. "He got sick, but didn't die.

"Four days later, on September 2, I put one and one-half teaspoonfuls of the arsenic in a glass of buttermilk which hed rank."

Harrington died early the following morning.

Tate, whom she had known for three years, urged her frequently to shoot, poison or divorce her husband, but she refused, Mrs. Tate said in a statement.

Tate purchased a half pound of arsenic, she said, and put it in her kitchen cabinet. The woman's statement then skips to the time Harrington was taken ill.

"One day Tate handed me a can of peaches. I didn't see him again until September 5, two days after my husband died, when Tate came and sat with the corpse with several members of my husband's church."

A week later Tate urged her to marry him and move to West Frankfort, another mining town near here. In a week they were married. Yesterday she came back to find whether her mother had received the miner's union death benefit for Harrington. She went to the cemetery and found the county authorities lifting her former husband's body out of the earth. She was arrested there.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 27.—"Bob said he would put poison in Jodey's dinner pail while they were working together in the mines." In these words, Mrs. Ruby Harrington Tate, thirty, told Williamson county authorities that she didn't kill her first husband, Joseph Harrington, who died September 3, but that she thought Robert Tate, twenty-six, whom she married September 24, did kill him.

Tate, held in jail here with his wife, denies any knowledge of the crime.

"Jodney died so sudden. I was kinda foolish about Bob" were her explanation.

The couple were arrested late yesterday in Johnson City, where the body was exhumed by author-

CAPPER CERTAIN AS TO OUTCOME

Kansas Senator Says That the Davis-Bryan Ticket Has a Bad Ring to Farmers of the Western States.

The political situation in Nebraska is much the same as in Kansas, according to Senator Capper who stopped in Lincoln Saturday after filling four speaking engagements in this state.

"On the whole," he said, "Kansas probably has a smaller percentage of LaFollette followers. It is possible, however, that he may run second there and most certainly in Nebraska, the democratic national ticket appears to have almost dropped out of the picture.

"This is not difficult to understand. I have talked to hundreds of Nebraskans, particularly to farmers and I find that to them the Davis-Bryan combination doesn't sound good. They are not taking it seriously.

"I find here in Nebraska as in Kansas that the farmers have confidence in Coolidge and that he will draw a tremendous vote from the women."

He said that the farmers are not fooled on the question of deflation and responsibility for it.

"You know I was fairly close to the situation," he said. "On four occasions I went with farmer groups before the federal reserve board and appealed that agriculture be given the same consideration as other big industries and that the farmer be not forced to liquidate. That was just before the crash. The board appointed by President Wilson was absolutely under democratic control.

"From comment I heard at Columbus, Wayne, West Point and Fremont, I assume that Nebraska is to elect a republican governor."

Senator Capper will campaign next week in Kansas and will spend two days of the following week in South Dakota.

Affected Area Is Near Source of City's Milk Supply—Herd of Dairy Cattle Thought Diseased.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 27.—Governor Pat Neff will leavve here for Houston tonight to take over personal direction of measures to localize the foot and mouth disease in that section.

Rangers in the southern section of the state have been ordered to assemble at the infected area to enforce quarantine and other precautionary regulations.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 27.—1,200 persons in quarantine in two suburbs of Houston, health department officials were to decide today whether the quarantine against anthrax was to be continued.

Forty federal inspectors, part of whom were in California at the outbreak of the hoof and mouth disease, there, are en route to Houston.

The affected area is near the source of the city's milk supply.

HOPES TO KEEP RESPECT

Dawes Would Rather "Take Licking" Than Not to Stand for Principle.

WINONA, Minn., Sept. 27.—"I would rather take a licking in this campaign than to lose your respect," Gen. Charles G. Dawes told depot crowds as he pulled out of Minnesota today. "I am satisfied that the people in this country are going to stand by the men who have the guts to stand for a great principle—the preservation of the constitution of the United States. There are a lot of peewit politicians running around the country today preaching one thing here and something else there to gain votes. They may get the votes that way but they don't get the respect of the honest God-fearing people upon whose ultimate good judgment rests the foundation of this government.

"The man who is going to get anywhere in this world must be willing to take a licking if necessary to fight for his principles. In the end [illegible] judgment of the people and he will have their respect. [illegible] your respect and I mean to have it."

Major Metcalfe, aid to the prince of Wales, early Sunday morning, September 21, called New York police to aid him in recovering a missing wallet which he described as the property of the prince of Wales and said it held valuable papers, photographs and money belonging to the prince. It was lost in the apartment of Miss Virginia De Lancy (above), beautiful young stage woman living at a fashionable house on the west side, New York city. When the police came the wallet had been found. But, with the prince and his entourage on the way to Canadian ranch, the prince himself came in on the story and has New York buzzing over the newest mysterious secret about the royal visitor. —P. & A.

SIR JOHN FRENCH'S BIRTHDAY

LONDON, Sept. 27.—Field Marshal the earl of Ypres (better known by his former title of Sir John French), former commander-in-chief of the British armies in France, celebrates his seventy-second birthday tomorrow, and is receiving congratulations from all over the world. The famous soldier has not been much in public life since relinquishing the viceroyalty of Ireland three years ago, but he has to spend considerable time unveiling war monuments, attending reunions, etc. in which he is always willing to participate. French had fought allover the world, and was a field marshal before the outbreak of the great war. He was one of the few commanders who gained fame in the South African war and was a dashing cavalry leader in his younger days.

DATA ON M'KEIGHAN'S LIFE

Historical Society Collecting Material on His Career.

From Miss Edith L. McKeighan at Red Cloud the State Historical society has just received a pamphlet giving an account of the unveiling of the monument to William Arthur McKeighan, at Red Cloud on May 30, 1901, including the address upon that occasion made by William V. Allen of Madison. Another pamphlet, being a memorial of William A. McKeighan with many letters and telegrams, is also sent. In addition to these a handsome photograph of the monument to Congressman McKeighan at Red Cloud with the inscription upon it "Erected by the Common People."

"There are yet living in Nebraska thousands of people who remember the vivid oratory of Congressman McKeighan of the fifth district," Secretary Sheldon says. "He was one of the most remarkable individuals of the Nebraska frontier, characteristic in every way of the place and time in which he lived. The society is expecting to receive other material bearing upon his life which may be of service in the creation of a future story of his life for a future Historical society publication."

If frequent shaving irritates your skin use
Resinol
Perhaps the daily shave makes your sensitive skin burn and smart, or it may cause a rash which is uncomfortable and embarrassing. Resinol Ointment helps greatly to relieve and clear away such ailments, but Resinol Shaving Stick tends to prevent them entirely. Its rich, generous, non-drying lather makes shaving a pleasure because no after-shaving lotions are necessary, and the face is left smooth, cool and soft. Resinol products at all druggists

REVOLUTION FLARES UP

BRAZILIAN TROOPS DEFEATED BY THE REBELS.

Parana Declared Independent State by Revolutionary Officers and an Unknown Number of Followers.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 27.—Brazilian government troops in the state of Parana were defeated and routed in battle with revolutionaries who have declared their independence, according to dispatches received here today.

The news means that the Brazilian revolution, thought to have been suppressed, has flared up again.

Revolutionary officers with an unknown number of followers struck at the government in Parana, a state of more than half a million population. They proclaimed it an independent state, giving it the name of Brasilendia.

According to a revolutionary manifesto, the new state includes the southern part of Matte Grosso, as well as part of Parana

The manifesto was signed by Generals Diaz Lopez and Juan Francisco and Colonels Bernardo Padilhar and Miguel Costa, who were prominent in the Sao Paulo revolution.

The rebels scored at least one decisive victory over the loyal troops.

HAS MOST DEGREES.

LOS ANGELES. — (By Mail.)—Dr. Amelia Reinhardt, who is at the head of the Mills college in California, is said to possess more college and university degrees than any other woman in America. In addition, she has the distinction of being the only woman to hold the presidency of a college in any part of the far west.

CONFESSES SHE POISONED HUSBAND

After hours of questioning, Mrs. Elsie Sweeten of Ina, Ill., admitted that she had poisoned her husband in love pact with the Rev. Lawrence Hight, who poisoned his wife.

CHILD LURED FROM HOME

SON OF WEALTH THOUGHT LURED BY ADVENTURE.

Young Hunchback Hobo May Have Had Part in the Disappearance of Franklin Roshek, Fourteen.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Altho romantic tales of travel, vision of strange lands and storm swept seas may have taken Franklin Roshek, fourteen-year-old son of wealth, from his parent's luxurious apartment in uptown New York, police today are pointing to the grave similarity between the boy's continued absence and the disappearance of Bobby Franks.

It was a young hunchback hobo, of obscure address, a street corner acquaintance, who built visions in Franklin's mind, took him to the foot of Riverside drive pointed to the ships at anchor in the river and told him of playgrounds around the world open only to the seafarer.

This much has been learned from Michael Levy, eleven, a chum, who has told of Franklin's acquaintance with the hunchback. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roshek, have been distracted since Tuesday, when the boy left for school and did not return in the evening.

"My pet, my baby, oh, my baby!" cried Mrs. Roshek. "How could he ever leave his home? I have given him everything."

A glimpse of the apartment and one knows this is true. Only last Sunday Franklin had a birthday and having expressed an interest in astronomy, he was given a telescope that could not have cost less than $350. He has an expensive radio set, scores of books and in his room is a catcher's mask and a "big league" glove and all sorts of playthings that "hunchback Reilly", as the young Levy boy calls Franklin's newly found friend, could never hope for, despite his imaginative mind.

When he left home Franklin had, so far as his father knows, only $1.50 in change, but he carried an expensive gold watch His clothes were costly and well tailored

For three days wharves, parks, railway stations and even remote places have been scoured and no trace of the boy has been found. His father, a buyer for a western drygoods house, has ordered a nation-wide search.

Kidnaping is not suspected because the boy left the apartment Tuesday without his school books, altho the mother had prepared them and left them neatly piled on a table near the door. This points to a premeditated departure, altho the mother, almost beside herself with grief, and running from room to room as tho she will find her boy hiding from her in a childish prank, believes he could not have gone of his own will.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Mary Gordon

Dear Mary Gordon: May I ask you for your kind advice?

I am a young woman twenty-six. When I was nearly twenty I started to lead a bad life.

Now a young man knowing my past, which is very dark has proposed to me. He says he wants me for what I am now not for my past.

I gave up my life of sin two years ago, when my physician pled with me to forsake it before it was everlastingly too late.

Since then thru many a sleepless night, and bitter tears of remorse, shed, when alone I have repented for my past life, and know that my sins have been forgiven.

Would I be doing wrong to marry this man when I kept no secrets from him?—"Repentant Rose."

A From what you tell me, I can see no reason why you should not marry him, if he is willing to take the risk.

Dear Mary Gordon: Last year in school I fell in love with a boy in one of my classes. This boy seem to care for me more than any other girl. But he is so bashful and never dates

As I was away all summer I thought I would forget about "my ideal." I had plenty of dates with nice boys. But no matter if I was climbing a mountain or riding an ocean liner, I was always thinking about him and at night dreaming of him.

So, please tell me how I can win him for a good friend. Yours—Maryland Jane.

P. S. This boy does not care for girls that run after boys.

A. If the boy is bashful, you might give him a little surreptitious help Can't some of your friends make him one of a party in hiking, driving or something of the sort, when you are along, and throw you two together?

Dear Mary: I feel very disappointed and for some reason can not enjoy life as it comes. I am a senior in high school and have been going with a boy for some time now who also goes to high school. He acts rather dignified and smart and is not full of pep. When we are in a crowd he does not seem to act like other boys and often gets a spell when he "snaps" back answers to my friends. No one seems to care so very much for him, and Mary, I never feel right when I am with him, for some reason I just can't have a good time. He is very good and treats me fine but I sometimes feel that I don't care for him. He also has a bad habit which sometimes is very embarrassing How can one do something about this, without saying it plainly to him? Do you think I'd regret it if I would quit going with him? I would if I could find a way to go places again. Would it be all right if I would "turn him down" sometimes when he asked for a date?

As this is my last year of high school I would like to enjoy it better than I am. His sister and I are very good chums, would this have any effect if I quit him?

Mary, I envy my other girl friend, for she is going with a fellow whom I like much better. He seems to be full of pep and so much different than the fellow I go with.

Please help me out and try to publish this soon as it worries me very much and also affects me in my work for I am thinking about it all the time.—True Blue.

A. There is not much use wasting your time with a companion of either sex, who is not interesting to you.

Perhaps if you were to discontinue your "dates" with him, some other boy, who is now in the background, would step forward, with offers of company for you. You might try it.

Every Woman Should Know—

That when the ostrich plume or neckniece has become wet or damp and looks bedraggled it can readily be restored to its original fluffiness if she sprinkles it thickly with common salt and shakes it before a bright fire until dry.

That if she hold a piece of soap under the fabric when piercing eyelets, letting the stiletto pass into the soap, it will impart just sufficient stiffness to the eyelet to insure an even embroidery.

Tha if a pinch of sugar is added to the rinsing water when washing veils they will be as crisp as when new, after being ironed.

That holes in kid gloves can be nearly mended by first buttonholing around the edge, then filling in with buttonhole stitch Of course the thread should perfectly match the gloves in color.

That she can test silk by cutting off a small piece and burning it. If it burns out quickly, leaving crisp, gray ashes, the silk is pure. If it smoulders and the ashes are a reddish brown and heavy, she will know it has been chemically treated and will not wear well.

That buttermilk can be made more palatable if a little salt is added.

That raw eggs are more easily digested if they are lightly beaten.

DORIS LEARNS WHY MRS. THISTLE WEARS A PRICKLY GOWN.

"PSHAW!" Doris exclaimed as she tried to get one of the lovely purple blossoms that held its head high on the end of the thistle stem. "If it wasn't for those old thorns! Goodness, I can't see why they have to have such prickles. It really spoils them—"

"I guess that's what Mrs. Ant thinks too," laughed a squeaky voice and Doris turned around to see Squeedee, the elfin from Joyland, smiling at her side.

"Well, it does seem a shame, Squeedee," Doris said pointing to the beautiful purple blossom, "I've been waiting for that blossom to grow so that I could pull it."

"How about that, Mrs. Thistle," laughed the elfin. "Doris can't understand why you wear such a prickly gown."

"No," sighed the plant quietly. "Well, I guess if she were a Thistle she'd soon see why we wear a prickly gown. There! Look down near my roots. See that silly Ant? I've told her time and time again she was not welcome to my honey, but she has persisted and now look at her! When she gets up a bit higher on my stem, her feet will get stuck and she won't be able to get either up or down. The Ants know that, yet why they take such chances I can't see for the life of me."

"But why do you wear such sticky, prickly gowns?" asked Doris freeing Mrs. Ant with a tiny stick and setting her once more on the ground where she belonged. "Do you want them to sip your honey?"

"No indeed I don't," replied Mrs. Thistle. "I cater to birds, bees and butterflies. There are plenty of hoffey wells they can visit. I'd have a terrible time taking care of Mrs. Butterfly's eggs and babies, the caterpillars, if I allowed the ants to crawl over me. No sir-ee, there are plenty of other places for them to get their groceries. I like bees, butterflies and birds the best."

"So that's why you wear a prickly gown," laughed Doris, "To keep the ants and other crawling things from getting up to your honey wells!"

"You are right, laughed Mrs. Thistle. "Then, too, the farmers hate us terribly and cut us down. If it wasn't for our prickly gowns we wouldn't have any chance at all."

"Did you always live here?" Doris asked.

"Goodness no," spoke up Squeedee. "Didn't you know, Doris, that the first thistles came from Europe and Asia? Mrs. Thistle is a naturalized American now and a very pretty one I think. It's too bad the farmers don't like her."

"Well, I like you all right and I sure would have picked your purple blossom if it hadn't been for all those prickles," laughed Doris.

"Go right ahead. Squeedee will hold back my thistles for you," laughed Mrs. Thistle. "I'm glad to have youngsters admire me," and Mrs. Thistle bobbed every one of her purple bonnets in pride.

Squeedee gathered several of the lovely thistle blossoms and handed them to Doris.

Doris thanked Mrs. Thistle and the elfin and ran home as fast as she could go with her prize.

A WIFE'S CONFESSIONAL

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Astounding Letter Hugh Grantland Wrote Madge.

I NEVER have experienced an earthquake, but I think I had all the sensations described by those who have gone through one as the extravagant salutation in Hugh Grantland's handwriting struck my eyes. My world indeed was shaking, for until the receipt of the letter which I held in my hand, unwilling to read further than the wild terms of endearment with which it began, I had leaned upon the knowledge of Hugh Grantland's friendship as one might rest against the shelter of a great rock.

I had known, of course, that Major Grantland cared for me with a feeling far stronger than friendship—it is a rare woman, found mostly in fiction, I suspect, who remains unconscious of a great love offered at her shrine, even though the man who offers it conceals his feeling heroically. But I also had known, for Hugh Grantland had made it plain to me, that never by word, glance, or speech, would he trouble me with the betrayal of an emotion which any woman might be proud to have aroused, and for which, I knew, many women would have bartered much.

It was this knowledge, coupled with the remembrance of the service he had rendered us in restoring Junior to our arms that had made me feel guiltless of any disloyalty to Dicky in keeping up the friendship, which always had seemed such a refuge to me.

"A parfait gentil knight." The old quotation always has seemed to me to fit Hugh Grantland as if it had been written for him. Brave almost to foolhardiness, yet wise in strategy, stern in the pursuit of his duty, yet tender as a gentle woman to any helpless creature, generous, chivalrous, honorable, brilliant, these qualities of mind and soul housed in a magnificent body—I did not wonder that men admired him and women were willing to give him something more than admiration.

Dicky is my own man—never have my pulses throbbed for any other—and I know that the end of my life will still find me "cleaving only to him" but——

I cannot help thrilling at the thought that Hugh Grantland's heart has been in my keeping ever since we were thrown together in war work.

What Has Happened?

The letter in my hand, however, if it bore out the wildness of its beginning, would spoil everything, cheapen the beautiful friendship which had been so dear to me, and make it necessary for me to shut Hugh Grantland out of my life.

What could have happened to make so sane a man break out in such rhodomontade as that which was staring up at me from the paper I held in my hand?

With a squaring of my shoulders, and a realization that whatever the letter contained, I must read it. I lifted the single sheet and again read the salutation:

"My own love forever lost to me." I shivered a bit at the crudity of it, and hurried on feverishly.

"Do not be angry at this letter, Beloved, nor call it impertinence"—the words leaped out at me like living things. "A man leaving the world, who never expects to taste life again, but who instead sees death facing him, may be pardoned for taking a final leave of the one dearest to him on earth. Your woman's intuition must have known you are that to me and have been ever since I first looked into your wonderful eyes and saw revealed there your still more wonderful soul.

"I would go to my death with these words unwritten, were it not for two things. One is my reluctance to have you think that I had failed you when the postcards no longer reach you. It is the bitterest thought I have—that I can no longer stand between you and any danger that may come to you.

"Good-bye, Rose!"

The other reason for my writing thus is one that may wound you when I write it, but it must be done. I know that you do not love me, that you are passionately in love with your husband, but I also know—I mean it has been borne in upon me—that sometime it may comfort you to know that one man carried your image supreme in his heart as long as life remained to him, and that as he went to his death his last thought was a longing for you, his last prayer a petition that you might be saved from hardship and unhappiness.

"You will never hear from me again, my darling—I may write this once, what I have so often called you in my heart—and such is the ironic fate confronting me, you will never know, nor can I tell you now, by what dread passageway I am to make the great transition. But that death is very near me, I am certain, else I never would risk sending this. Dying I may write words freely to you, which if I were living and facing you, your loyal loving soul could not read.

"What you have been to me, you never can know. I do not think a woman ever was so enshrined before in a man's aching heart. But though the bliss of your love has been denied me, the memories of your stanch friendship and of your sweetness are things which I shall take with me beyond the grave.

"Good-bye, rose of the world. I am sending you the kiss I never have given you.

"HUGH."

I dropped the letter in my lap and stared wild-eyed into space. Surely there was but one explanation of this letter.

Hugh Grantland must suddenly have gone mad!

"JOURNEY'S END" -:- By Juanita Hamel

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

WHO else in all the world but Shakespeare could have expressed so aptly the joy and happiness of the loved one's return, when he wrote "Journeys end in lover's meeting." For then it is that all the anxious moments of waiting are over, all the doubts and fears fly as though winged, and joy and happiness reign supreme in TWO eager hearts!

YOUR HEALTH

Why You Must Keep Thin If You Would Win Success

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. COPELAND

I WAS talking to an old friend of mine about horses. Just then there drove past what looked to me like a fine team. They were sleek and handsome, with long manes and tails. They stepped high for farm horses.

When I called attention to this team, my friend said at once: "No good. Too fat. Might get some good out of them by working them down."

Recently I spoke to three thousand Boy Scouts and emphasized the importance of health. It was just after the political conventions and the time suggested a theme. I told the boys that voters like thin men and said

"Don't get fat if you want to be President of the United States. Voters think that if a man is too lazy to care for his own health, he will be too lazy to care for public business. So, if you would roll up a big vote, keep your waistline down.

"Look at the men who were chosen to head our national tickets. They are in perfect health. Army physicians have just pronounced President Coolidge physically fit. Everybody knows Dawes is not an invalid. Davis is an enthusiastic sportsman. Bryan is a sturdy six-footer. In spite of his years and recent pneumonia, La Follette is sturdy and strong. Wheeler is lean and hard, fit as an Indian."

I am aware, of course, of the great weight of the Adamses, Van Buren, Cleveland and Taft, but these are the exceptions. It is indeed true that it is "the lean horse for the long race."

Horses are not permitted to get fat. Everybody knows just how to keep a horse in condition. It is done by cutting down on the feed or by "working him out," or by both.

It takes a lot of character to keep thin. Not everybody has to make the effort, because not everybody has the tendency to overweight. In short, the thin person deserves no special praise, because the thinness is "natural" and is not acquired. But to stay thin when the tendency is to get fat, is a real achievement. I read somewhere, that in Persia it is the rule that everybody must sweat at least once a day. This is a good rule for everybody. If your tendency is to increase in weight, you cannot stop it without freely perspiring every day.

I have said time and time again that I am not interested in keeping thin just for the looks. It is because excessive weight reduces the health and span of life, that I am opposed to it. Your expectation of life is materially reduced if you grow fat.

It is not important that you or I should try to be President, or seek any other public office, but it is important, if we are to do our share of the world's work, to keep fit. We cannot be ready to serve unless we have health and vigor. We cannot have health and vigor if we take on excessive flesh.

Answers to Health Questions

T. C. W. Q.—What would you advise for constant sunburning? The person in question is out in the sun all day long. Would lemon juice and peroxide be effective?

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE.

I have been going with a young man four years my senior. I love him dearly but he insists on embracing and kissing me good night. Is this proper since we are not engaged? He acts as if he cares for me dearly, but how am I to tell?

PUZZLED.

PUZZLED: No, you should not allow a man to make love to you unless you are engaged to him.

The final test of a man's love is a proposal of marriage. If you tell him that you disapprove of his actions, perhaps he will declare himself to you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young matron. I have been married almost a year.

I love my husband dearly. But my mother and my two sisters, one of whom is married, call me foolish for staying with him. My unmarried sister simply ignores him when we go to mother's home.

Oh, I am trying so hard to be true to him. He has petty little faults which I try to overlook. And it's hard to know he is not accepted as a son-in-law and brother.

At times I feel so discouraged I should like to leave him, then I remember he is more to me than all the world. But, can you tell me which way to turn? It is much like the proverbial "Between two Fires."

Should I cease going to my mother's? We always have a disagreement after we have been. Can't you help me?

PRETTY DISCOURAGED.

PRETTY DISCOURAGED: You had your chance before you were married to choose between your husband and your mother. But now that you have made your decision, it is your duty to stay by the man who is your husband. To leave the man you love because he has a few petty faults, would be to make a great mistake. Have you ever stopped to consider that there are probably innumerable little things that you do that may annoy him? Your sister is acting in a very reprehensible manner, and you may be sure that if they should persuade you to break up your home, they would not make your home-coming a very pleasant one. However, try if possible to avoid a definite break with your family. Keep on friendly but distant terms with them. Your husband need not go to see them. If you do, listen to them calmly, say nothing and I'm sure they'll soon get tired.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I—When you have been going with a boy and are tired of his company how is the best way to get rid of him without making him your enemy?

DIMPLES.

DIMPLES: 1.—The next time he asks you to go out with him, tell him that you have a previous appointment. If you say the same thing several times in succession, he will know that you do not want to see him. Of course, it's always difficult to drop someone without hurting his feelings to some extent, but he'll get over it.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Magic Wishes

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Winifred Black

I WAS watching three little girls as they sat under the big shade tree and played a game well known to me in childhood—The Wishing Game.

Each of the children strove to outdo the others in wishing for wonderful things—there were diamonds sparkling in the fantasies of them all, and pearls and emeralds were as common as the sands of the sea. There came a time when the little ones tired of their game and asked an older sister to tell them this story that their grandmother had told them a few days before:

Once upon a time there was a poor old man and his wife who had come to the end of their means and as they sat by the dying brands in their fireplace—the last fagots the old woman had picked up from the neighboring forests—they wistfully talked and as they sat there, there came out of the black fire a little red-capped fairy. He told the two they could have three wishes and no more, so they should be careful what they wished. Another condition was that there was to be no contention between the two.

The grandmother spoke up first:

"I wish I had a big black pudding right here now."

"No, no!" said the old man. "You don't want a black pudding."

"Yes, I do," she said.

"Well, here it is," the old man said, "and I wish it was fastened to the end of your nose and would never come off."

Immediately the black pudding was suspended from the old grandame's nose and the poor woman burst into tears.

"Be careful!" said the fairy. "You have only one wish more."

So they argued for a long, long time and finally decided to wish that the pudding would disappear altogether and leave the old woman with her nose free for its ordinary functions.

So they had used up their three wishes and wasted them.

There was great laughter among the little girls, but Eva, the youngest, said:

A Case in Point.

"I believe we have wasted a lot of our wishes. What would we do with diamonds and emeralds and pearls out here among the trees and flowers? I'm willing to wait a long time, really, before I have any jewels."

Wise little women! I suppose the time will come when these children really will wish for jewels and all that go with jewels in this puzzling old world.

I was thinking of the old couple in the black forest with their futile wishes and it seems to me that we all might take occasion to be more careful about what we wish, for if some of our desires were realized, there would certainly be a great to do ensuing.

Some of the strenuous teachers and preachers of our day persist in declaring that those who wish very hard get their desires. They quote many an example to show how strenuous wishing and pushing for the object wished for has brought about success.

We all of us know there is much truth in this, but who does not know also that to bend every thought and impulse in one selfish direction often cripples a life instead of making it grow finer? Take the man who has riches for his one object. He sacrifices everything, friends, family, the simple joys of life, with the object before him of piling up money and living for money alone. He does get it, but loses everything else.

I remember a very rich man in a far-away country who had grown old in a strenuous railroad game, and now he was rich and old and tired and his daughters begged him to retire from business and enjoy himself. The old man resigned and left his great offices and came home to prepare for a journey abroad. He took the clever ambitious daughters with him, but the group did not stay long anywhere.

He Had Only One Wish.

London and Paris bored the railroad man and in three weeks he came back to America and started for the Golden West, where again he was bored beyond all measure. The gold was hidden in the mountains of Colorado and did not appear upon the surface even in California, and the tired old business man longed for the field of stocks and bonds and for the talk of them among the men of his class who were still in the struggle for money.

Back came the family from the West and the old gentleman went into business again and worked for the remainder of his days. He could enjoy nothing but work, nothing but piling up money, he had but one wish and that wish was granted, but after all the old man declared that life was a hollow affair and that he would be glad when it was over.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

A Hint of the Art of Color Harmony in Your Own Home

By WANDA BARTON

COLOR tones are valued by the interior decorator and are placed where they will do the most good as high spots in the decorative scheme of a room.

In the diningroom the side table, veiled with a lace runner, may have a pair of tall amber colored glass candlesticks with lemon colored candles in them, while the large yellow glass plate in the centre is filled with rosy-cheeked yellow pears with one or two oranges to heighten the color shading. Against a brown wainscoting or paper the effect of this arrangement is most attractive.

In a large, dark inside room a curtain of gold cloth draped at either side of corner book shelves compelled the eye as surely as a ray of sunshine would have done. It lighted the whole room without in the least detracting from the other decorations. It is in knowing just where to put a color tone to get its full value that counts in decoration.

An odd fancy at one end of a dark hall was a large iridescent glass dish with candlesticks to match placed on a console table which was covered with a Venetian embroidered linen scarf. In the dish were delicate pink and yellow shell flowers glowing with soft light. The flowers are wired by a new method which lights the stems and blossoms as well. While rather expensive, they are very pretty when put in the right place. They also make charming shades for sidelights in a room when the right colors are used.

Compote dishes or bowls of colorful glassware are very charming for holding flowers or fruits. Glass or rubber fruit may be used, the latter being particularly natural in appearance, and excellent color effects can be accomplished.

The charmingly natural flowers made of wood shavings are guaranteed to keep their color and lifelike appearance for months and are, therefore, being used for decorations instead of the perishable flowers. These flowers may be used in profusion and by altering their arrangement frequently the color tone is retained indefinitely where the real flowers would fade and die in a few hours.

A little thought and attention to color schemes is all that is required to attain a perfect harmony in decoration that will prove a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About A Delightfully Colored Coat.

PAM and I have had lots of fun looking for interesting fashions lately.

"I do love to stroll along in the sunshine and look about for attractive things," Pam remarked as we strolled down the Avenue together to-day.

"I've decided coats this year are more attractive than they have ever been," I announced, out of a clear sky.

Pam agreed that she had seen any number of coats that were most effective.

"I'm so glad," I confided to her. "Are you thinking of getting a coat for yourself?" Pam asked.

"Yes," I answered. "I've usually felt that a coat was simply a garment one needed for warmth, but this season the coat seems more decorative than ever and just as warm."

"What color have you in mind?" Pam asked me.

"I really don't think I have any," I confessed to her. Then I gave her my idea as follows:

"I think it would be loads more fun to go about with an open mind looking at all the attractive colors and waiting to be convinced," I said.

"That's all very well if the color you like won't clash with your frocks and hats," Pam advised.

"I intend to wear a black hat almost always as I think it is smarter than anything," I told her.

"How about your Winter frocks?" Pam asked.

I wear a lot of navy blue as you know," I replied. "Then I want a green and perhaps a brown dress."

"How would it be to try bright green coats?" Pam queried suddenly, with her eyes sharp to the fore.

I looked in the direction she indicated and saw a young girl approaching in a very bright green coat.

"I agree with you," I answered. "And I think I shall favor a vivid green shade much like that one."

"Isn't it striking the way the moleskin trimming is worked in diamond pattern?" Pam asked, when the wearer of the coat had passed near enough for us to get every detail.

"Stunning," I agreed. "And I adored those smart puffed cuffs of the moleskin."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY and MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28—29.

Sunday's astrological chart holds promise of reward for honest and necessary work, but urges those in the employment of others to be careful. All should be discreet and conservative in the matter of pleasure and company, as difficulties threaten.

Those whose birthday it is may succeed if they attend sharply to business. Also, they should be careful and discreet in social pleasures. A child born on this day although inclined to be industrious and attentive to business may succumb to many social lures and indulgences.

Monday's horoscope is interesting and promising according to the generally favorable business as well as social aspects. Jupiter, Venus and Mercury are friendly disposed. There is danger, however, through bad temper and hasty deeds.

Those whose birthday it is should have a prosperous and happy year if they will control their tempers and shun rash actions. A child born on this day will be respectful and hold good position despite a tendency to be eccentric and also bitter and sarcastic of speech unless given more training early in life.

The "American" Puzzle

(One of the World's Greatest Detectives Did)

"The Marquis of Diona—or whatever his real name was—placed the necklace and his wallet in the drawer of the desk and then left the room, saying that he would return in a moment?" asked Luigi Bonfi, one of the cleverest men on the detective force of Rome.

"He did," replied the jeweler who had been robbed. "I waited for him in vain, but I did not worry because I had seen him place the necklace in the drawer. Then, some two hours later, when I inquired of the hotel management, they told me that the Marquis and his daughter-in-law had left some time before. The drawer to the desk was locked, but when I pried it open it was empty!"

Without a word Bonfi made his way to the adjoining room and there cleverly concealed in the wall he pointed out a secret doorway which had been cut thru in such a way that it was easy to reach the drawers of the desk on the other side. The back of the drawer in which the necklace had been placed had been hinged and it would have been the work of only a moment for someone to insert a hand, secure the necklace and wallet and escape.

"That's how they were taken," Bonfi explained. "Now it's up to us to locate them and the stones."

The latter half of the task was by no means as easy as the first part had been, for he had to trace the "Marquis" and his "daughter" to Turin, Genoa, Nice, Cologne and then to London before he finally caught up with them. At last, after more than six months, he spotted them in London, only to be met by irate denial of the man he was after that he had ever posed as the Marquis of Diona or that he had ever been in Rome, accounting for his possession of a number of unset diamonds by claiming that he had bought them in South America and exhibiting a bill of sale covering the stones.

"It's easy enough to forge a bill of sale," declared Bonfi, examining the gems under a magnifying glass. "But you can't forge a diamond and one of these had a semi-circular flaw in precisely the same place as one of the stones in the missing necklace. That's something you will have to explain to the court"—and the "Marquis," being unable to do so, spent the next twelve years in prison.

The "American" Puzzle.

John Wilson Murray, chief of the Canadian Secret Service, summed up the mystery connected with the murder of John Bryan and his son by saying: "Then the only clue you have to the whole affair is that this crazy woman was found on the porch of her house, shrieking something that sounded like 'Americans! Americans!'?"

"That" said the local Chief of Police, "is absolutely all. But it wasn't 'something that sounded like Americans.' That is what she was saying, or, at least, it's all any one could make of her senseless babble."

"But the testimony shows that some children on their way to school heard Mrs. Bryan sobbing on her porch," Murray argued. "One of them went up to see what the matter was, and found her, half-clothed and apparently out of her head, repeating over and over a single word. That word was not 'Americans,' but 'Amer'——"

"If 'Amer' is not the first part of 'American,' what is it?" demanded the chief of police. "It makes no sense by itself, and the woman's reason was unseated by the sight of her husband and son murdered before her eyes. Besides the fact that Bryan had a quarrel only a few days ago with some workmen from the other side of the border makes it practically certain that the last thing that was burned into the consciousness of the unfortunate woman was that her husband and son had been killed by Americans. Dosen't it look that way to you?"

"That may be the solution to the affair," Murray admitted; "but I can't help feeling that it isn't."

As events proved, the chief of the Canadian Secret Service, was right. "Amer" did not mean "Americans." But what did it mean? Why did Mrs. Bryan repeat it over and over again? What was the clue that Murray found in the apparently meaningless word that led him straight to the men who had committed the crime?

The answers to these questions will appear on Monday.

The program included addresses of welcome, musical selections, readings and a short and humorous play, followed by games, a social hour and refreshments.

When the senator arrives in Lincoln he will be taken to the Lindell hotel where convenient quarters for a reception have been arranged. Many Lincoln people have expressed a desire to meet the senator and they will be given this chance prior to the evening meeting.

LaFollette headquarters announced that arrangements for the evening meeting were complete and that a big crowd was anticipatetd.

CITY DOES NOT OBJECT

recognized, should be subject to regulation, and the consolidation in its details to be subject to further approval. What his clients wanted to know was that the commission would permit a consolidation.

Mr. Beghtol said that the companies had come frankly before the commission in order that the public might be fully informed of all the steps taken. The gas company is owned by the Nebraska Gas & Electric company, which in turn is owned by the Continental, so that in effect it is a merger of two companies in partial competition, the sale of current. He said this application was made pursuant to the requirement of the new constitution that whenever it is desired to consolidate the stock, earnings, franchise and properties of two utilities the consent of the commission must be obtained. He believed this would be to the advantage of the rate-paying public as it decreased expenses and lowered the overhead.

The City's Position.

Mr. Peterson said that the city council recognized the possible saving and the possibility of lower rates, and that it meant the elimination of a decided duplication in equipment. Its only interest was in keeping the record straight. Not all of the franchises involved are assignable, but in the ultimate consolidation this might not raise any such question as it was possible that if the traction company franchise cannot be assigned that of the gas company would be available.

He was not informed as to how this would affect the line of railway to the beach and the western suburb, and he suggested that this and other matters be presented to the commission in proper form so that all may be made plain before final action is taken.

It was also important to know that the service would not be impaired by some possible controversy by a minority stockholder. He knew of none such, and the city was not interested save that it did not want the service tied up by any trouble with these minority holders.

Mr. Flansburg said that what was proposed is proper and logical and will be better for the company and the people. No stockholders are objecting, and what the traction company wants is permission to go ahead and consolidate.

George A. Lee of Omaha said that the lawyers were not agreed upon whether the constitutional provision applies, but they did not want to go ahead and consolidate leaving the matter open to question. For that reason the application had been made in its present form. The spirit of the constitution at least was being observed, which was that the consent of the sovereign, exercised thru the commission, shall be obtained before competition is eliminated. He said it would save a second agony if the whole matter could be settled now instead of three or six months later when actual physical consolidation could be effected.

Mr. Lee said that what was being asked of the commission was its assent to the reasonableness, desirability, practicability and necessity of the consolidation. He listed the advantages as follows: A saving in operating economies; elimination of many poles from the streets; a larger and efficient and possibly more modern plant; less hazard to the workmen and the public thru lessened number of wires; a larger output that would mean production at less cost which would be reflected in rates; improved service, a smaller amount necessary for maintenance and depreciation charges; easier to raise money to finance development and at lower rates of interest; th elimination of wasteful and extravagant duplication.

He pointed out that it would be a horse of a different color if this consolidation eliminated all competition. The city is still left in the field with a fine plant and a well-manned operating staff. The city also has the power of regulating rates, and thiss and the fact that if the service is impaired it invites other competition are factors to consider. What his clients desired to know was the attitude of the commission toward consolidation, as that was the ultimate object. He read from a number of other utility commissions and court decisions to show the general attitude as being favorable to elimination of competition between utilities.

Mr. Beghtol supplemented his first statement by saying that he had no objection to the commission saying it had no jurisdiction over the stock purchase contract, but he wanted it to say it had no objection to the consolidation proceedings. This would, in time, mean an actual consolidation of physical properties. He was not now asking an order to hook up the plants, but one to go ahead with the plans now formulated.

Mr. Lamaster insisted that the commission ought to have something more definite before it, not blue prints and settled details, and that there was no such thing possible as a mere order to proceed, which was all that is being asked in definite terms.

OPEN BIDS ON FIRE TRUCK

Three Firms Bi dto Sell "Pump Wagon"—Paving and Water District Bids Examined.

Commissioner John Wright, City Engineer Erickson and City Clerk Berg opened bids Saturday morning on a "new pump wagon" for the fire department. Mr. Wright stated that the contract to purchase the fire truck will not be let for probably several weeks, pending an examination of four eligible bids.

The Stutz Fire Engine company, Seagrave company and American La France company bid each $12,500, and the Ahrens-Fox company $13,000.

Low bidders on paving and water district contracts, whose bids were opened Saturday morning were:

Reimers-Kaufman company, to pave the alley between K and L streets, from Thirteenth to Fourteenth, $1,337.60.

Abel Construction company, to pave C street from Thirty-third to Thirty-fifth, $3,397.20; and to pave Twenty-third street from D to Union avenue, $3,032.40.

Knudson company, to lay a four-inch water main in district 73, Hitchcock street from Thirty-second to Thirty-third, $1,355.

Bids were offered by eight firms to supply the fire department with new hose. These were taken under advisement by Commissioner Wright, who will confer with Fire Chief Hansen on the quality of sample submitted, before awarding the contract.

WARRING OVER AN ESTATE

Three Children Object Because One Son Got $100,000 as His Share.

The $180,000 estate left by Matthew Wilson, a one-time wealthy resident of Dawson county, is the stake that is being fought over by four of his children in supreme court. Shortly before he died Wilson made a will in which he gave a son, Matthew H. Wilson, $10,000 and a quarter section of land; $10,000 each to his sons Charles and John and his daughters, Mary L. Wilson and Mrs. Emma Morehead, and the remainder, about $100,000, went to his son John.

The will was offered for probate by John W. Wilson, the chief beneficiary, and he was able to sustain it in the lower courts against the assaults of his two sisters and his brother Joseph. The latter said that the will was obtained from their father by improper influence exerted by John W. Wilson and that it was executed at a time when he was not mentally competent to dispose of his estate. They claim that he was driven into making the will over his own protest, and one of them testified that he told him the morning it was signed that he hoped he would die before 2 o'clock, the hour the will was to be presented to him.

NEBRASKA NEWS.

Nebraska City — Fred Tubbs, farmer living near Palmyra, was arrested here Friday on charges of issuing no fund checks. He is being held in the county jail upon complaint of the county attorney.

Trenton—The McDonald market and grocery was robbed of merchandise valued at more than $50 Thursday night. Men's shoes, neckties, collars, shirts and gloves were taken. About $3 in cash was taken from the till.

Nebraska City—A large barn, property of Charles McNamara, was destroyed by fire here Friday, together with a loft full of hay and corn. It was necessary to play two streams on the house and other buildings to prevent further loss.

Hubbell—Threshing has started again in this community. Farmers who stacked their wheat two months ago are taking advantage of the increasing price and putting their grain on the market. Several days' work at threshing is yet reported to exist in this vicinity. This station is loading out about three carloads of grain daily.

FORCED TO MAKE DEAL

W. E. SHARP SAYS TRACTION COMPANY UP AGAINST IT.

Facing Sharp Competition and No Money in Sight to Finance New Development of Lines.

W. E. Sharp, president of the Lincoln Traction company, told the members of the state railway commission, whose permission for a consolidation with the gas company is being asked, at the hearing Saturday afternoon that the deal was necessary to the financial salvation of his company's stockholders.

He said, that as matters now stood it is not possible to issue any more bonds as the present $1,500,000 mortgage is a closed one. It is impossible to sell any more preferred stock. In financial matters the company is at a standstill. He now has thirty-five applications for extensions that cannot be granted because the company has no money. It can only pay for these out of earnings and dividends.

The company has paid past preferred stock dividends in new stock and has also paid several cash dividends in the past several years. The effect on the stock is shown b ythe prices at which it is now quoted for sale.

Electrically the company is faced with the necessity of large investments in order to compete with companies. In the electric industry the tendency is wotward nation-wide consolidations, and it is this competition that his company is up against. A year ago it purchased a new turbine for $150,000. That is now loaded to capacity and in order to keep in competition a new one must be bought. The only other laternative is to use the old and inefficient machinery.

He told of his negotiations to get away from this situation. He found the Continental was the only company with which a consolidation could be effected. Eastern bankers will not loan money any more on traction stock because of its low earning power.

Mr. Sharp said the public would benefit by being tied up with a company that serves 160 cities now and which meant a big plant here eventually. Better service to consumers would inevitably result. Thirty-two thousand shares of traction stock are pledged to the consolidation.

He said that if the commission did not approve of the consolidation and thus save as much for the stockholders as possible, he would hate to think of what would happen, which would be the eventual loss of all of it.

WOMAN DENIES SHE POISONED HUSBAND

ities following gossip and the suggestion of the Hight-Sweeten poisoning case at Mount Vernon.

The police officers and a newspaper man obtained the confession from Mrs. Tate in the county jail here.

Poison was used to kill Harrington, Mrs. Tate said.

"I gave him milk and a can of peaches that Tate gave me," she said.

Harrington came home from the coal mine at which he worked ill, she stated in her confession. She said she believed Tate gave him the first poison.

The vital organs of Harrington, were disinterred yesterday, by order of Coroner William McGowan, following suspicion aroused by the Hight-Sweeten poisoning case at Mount Vernon, forty miles north.

Organs from the body of Joseph Harrington, who died here September 3, were on their way to Springfield for chemical analyssis today.

Coroner William McGowan had the body of Harrington disinterred in a cemetery here late yesterday and after an autopsy, ordered the widow, Ruby, and Robert Tate, a coal miner she married September 24 held on suspicion. Tate had boarded at the Harrington home for several months.

Dr. L. H. Green, who with Dr. M. Hendrickson, performed the autopsy, said there was "something wrong with the stomach."

GERMAN SYNOD TO MEET IN LINCOLN

Branch of United Lutheran Church to Hold Convention in City During First Week in October.

The thirty-fifth annual convention of the German Evangelical synod of Nebraska, a district synod of the United Lutheran church, will be held at Lincoln Otcober 2 to 6. The business sessions will be at the Grand hotel. Services will be conducted in churches of the synod. The opening service, Thursday, October 2, will be at 9 a. m. at St. John's church, Eleventh and Plum. Other services will be held at the Friedens church, Sixth and D, and Zoar church, Havelock. Eighty-three pastors and ninety-five churches are connected with this synod. The officers are: Rev. C. Goede, Glenvil, president; Rev. C. Schuldt, Fontanelle, secretary; Rev. J. Schrader, Yutan, treasurer; Rev. F. Rabe, Lincoln, statistical secretary.

The German Nebraska synod using both languages, English and German, in most of the churches and Sunday schools, and the Nebraska synod using English exclusively, were originally one and eventually will be one again. The Nebraska synod (English), will convene in Omaha, November 7 to 9. It will be the fifty-second convention of that synod.

The first president of the original synod, Rev. F. H. Kuhlman, is at present a resident of Lincoln. He remained with the English synod at the time of the separation. Mr. Kuhlman organized a number of congregations and built several churches connected with the English or the German synod. He came to Nebraska and Lincoln in 1864, sent as a missionary by the Alleghany synod of Pennsylvania. Mr. Kuhlman has been a member of the large Tabitha home family for several months. He will be ninety-five November 10, 1924. If not the oldest, he is one of the oldest men of this city.

The United Lutheran church, with which both Nebraska synods are connected, has headquarters in New York, and will hold its fourth convention in Chicago October 21. The United Lutherans are strongest in Pennsylvania. The church with the largest membership is in Omaha, with a membership of nearly 3,700. Four institutions of the church are located in Nebraska: Tabitha home and Martin Luther seminary, Lincoln; Midland college and the Western Theological seminary Fremont.

SCHRODER ON GAS PLAN

Regrets That Protest Made Came Too Late to Get Out Referendum Petitions.

In a letter to City Commissioner Cowgill E. H. Schroeder, among other things writes:

"Several months ago the city commissioners, thru the papers, led the people of Lincoln to believe that they would submit the gasoline question to the voters at this November election. Again they indicated their good intention when they passed the appropriation ordinance on September 1. I still believe that they will keep faith with the people.

"The protest o fthis delegation is certainly untimely as it comes at the leventh hour and does not give the municipal ownership forces time enough to get the necessary referendum petitions to have this matter submitted at the coming election. If we are forced to have a special election on this question, the cost will be a great deal more.

"Permit me to say that the municipal ownership forces have never suggested a muny clothing store or a muny grocery store.

"The municipal ownership forces would not have favored the gasoline proposition had not the oil men charged the consumers as high as twenty-two cents per gallon, when gasoline was laid down on trackage in Lincoln at nine cents."

FIND NO CLUES TO YEGGS

Officials Still at Sea Regarding Identity of Postoffice Burglars.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Sept. 27.—Government inspectors and postal officials who are still in conference at the federal building following the $12,000 post office robbery are still at loss for clues that might establish the identity of the yeggs. Finger prints are indistinct in most cases and no tools of value for identification purposes were left in the building.

On a shelf in secluded part of the valut, R. M. Thorpe, deputy postmaster, had a safety deposit box which contained two diamond rings belonging to his wife, a watch carried by his father and a pin worn by his mother. The rings weer taken but the watch, pin and other mementoes were not disturbed. The reward for the apprehension of the yeggs, according to Postoffice Inspector Coble, will be fixed in proportion to the magnitude of the crime. Details of the robbery have been broadcasted by radio.

A reserve stamp supply has arrived from Omaha to tide over the emergency. The hole in the vault wall has been repaired and the debris cleared away. Officers are still attempting to locate three men, traveling in a large touring car, who were seen here the afternoon before the robbery.

NEWSIES GROW TO BE SUCCESSFUL MEN

Warren G. Harding One of Many Successful Citizens Who Sold Papers When They Were Boys.

A newsboy or paper carrier can grow up to be presiden, millionaire, inventor, governor, ambassador, champion prize fighter, cardinal, automobile manufacturer or most any kind of a successful business or professional man that he wants to be. The ambitious lad who starts out as a paper boy butts up against the world younger than the average younster. He learns a lot thru his daily contact with the people who really accomplish things. When he reaches the age of maturity he has a head start on the rest of his fellows. He realizes the value of hard work, education, thrift and gets his share of the benefits derived by application of them.

Among the many "newsies" who have made their mark in the world are: Kenesaw M. Landis, grand baseball commissioner and judge; Herbert E. Hoover, secretary of commerce of the United States; Thomas Edison, electrical genius of national fame; Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, U. S. A.; Robert C. Childs, ambassador of Switzerland; Cardinal Gibbons, late cardinal of America; Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world; Charles M. Schwag, president of the United States Steel corporation; Henry Ford, multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer; F. E. Hylan, mayor of New York city; Warren G. Harding, former president of the United States.

RETAIL MARGIN NOT EXCESSIVE

Retailers Federation Takes Exception to Statements Indicating Merchants' Margin on Butter Too Wide.

The statement of a butter manufacturer in the press this week to the effect that housewives all over the country were being gouged by retail grocers, struck fire from the federated retailers of Nebraska. C. W. Watson, secretary of the federation, makes this statement:

"There appeared in the Nebraska press, on Thursday, September 25, a news item headed "Housewives are Gouged," quoting George L. McKay, secretary of the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers, and purporting to show that "housewives' are being gouged out of many thousands of dollars by retailers who are profiteering on butter."

"Altho the item bore a Chicago headline there was nothing in the article to indicate that the interview referred to Chicago conditions only; and as the article does not truthfully represent conditions as they apply to the retail trade of Nebraska, we take this means of calling the facts to your attention.

"The writer has this day personally inspected invoices of Lincoln retailers, showing the wholesale price paid by them for a well-known and nationally advertised brand of butter laid down in their stores on September 20, 1924, and on a corresponding date one year ago, September 20, 1923. He has found and inspected Lincoln daily papers as of these dates and noted the retail price being charged for this brand of butter on these same dates as indicated by the merchants' newspaper advertisements.

The invoice or wholesale price for this brand of butter on September 20, 1923 was 48c per pound, and the advertised retail price on this same date for this same brand of butter was 50c per pound. The invoice or wholesale price of this brand of butter on September 20, 1924, was 39c per pound; and the advertised retail price on this same date on this same brand of butter was 41c per pound. You will note the retailer took, in each instance, a margin of only 2c per pound. Furthermore, these figures show a decline in the wholesale price of butter of this particular brand in a year's time of 9c per pound; and likewise a decline, during the same time, of 9c per pound in the advertised retail price. Altho the foregoing prices and margins will vary slightly for different towns, I am confident that further investigation will reveal similar conditions existing thruout the state of Nebraska."

Mr. Watson quotes a department of labor publication to show that both wholesale and retail food prices declined approximately two points between July a year ago and last July. He also cites University of Nebraska figures showing that twenty-one Omaha and Lincoln grocery stores made a net profit of 2.55 per cent in 1923, and twenty-two in other Nebraska towns averaged 2.81 per cent.

RAILROAD BRIDGE BURNS

The Burlington railroad's valley line was blocked by the burning of a bridge 56 feet long, located four miles west of Riverton, from 1 a. m. till 10 a. m. Saturday. The bridge was ten feet high. It was found necessary to detour No. 14 via Hastings.

Find Tools in Lincoln.

NEBRASKA CITY, Sept. 27.—Thru the efforts of Sheriff Ryder of this county and State Sheriff Tom Carroll, an electric drill and several dies, stolen several months ago from the Esser garage here, were recovered by their owner from a Lincoln garage Friday. A short time ago, the rest of the loot was found cached in a weed patch west of this city. The Lincoln garage man said he bought the tools from a man who drove a car carrying a Missouri license plate. The stranger said he had to sell his tools to contiune his journey west. The description tallies with that of a local man suspected of the theft.

TUNNEL MYSTERY LIGHT

Wife of Scientist Declares He Dug Labyrinths Twenty Years Ago.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. The great Washington tunnel mystery which was rolling along at breakneck speed threatening to become an international sensation, suddenly developed a flat tire today with the admission of a gray bearded scientist of the Smithsonian institute that he dug the tunnels twenty years ago, "for exercise."

The origin and first purpose of the tunnels thus is explained but the tenancy of the labyrinth since he sealed it up ten years ago, the litter of German newspapers and the profusion of bottles still gives life to the lurid stories of spies and bootleggers.

Harrison G. Dyar, Smithsonian entomologist, says he's the man who dug them.

"I did it for exercise," he said. "Digging tunnels after work is my hobby."

"Yes," said his wife, "the doctor did it just as some other man passes his time after office hours playing golf."

Dyar said he started digging the tunnels in 1905 or 1906 when he resided in the neighborhood in a house which has since given way to an apartment building. Like a mole he pushed his way thru the earth digging out a little at a time with his then small son as his only assistant.

TAGGART OPERATED UPON

General Health of Indiana "Boss" Such He Is Expected to Recover.

BOSTON, Sept. 27. — Thomas Taggart, democratic "boss" of Indiana, successfully underwent an appendicitis operation at the Massachusetts general hospital today. Dr. D. F. Jones, who performed the operation, issued the following statement:

"Abscesses about the appendix drained under local anaesthetic. Condition of patient good."

The general health of the patient was such, it was said that no complications are expected.

TO BOOST DAIRY INTEREST

Purebred Sire Train Expected to Have Far Reaching Influence.

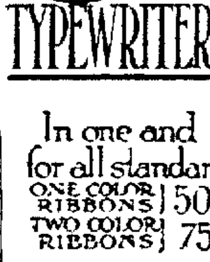

"There will be a great difference in the spread of influence for better purebred dairy sires between the exchange thru the plan of the Burlington dairy sire train than thru a direct sale of just as good a purebred sire by a breeder to a farmer in a new community," E. W. Frost, president of the state Holstein association, believes. According to the plan of the train a farmer in each of thirty-one communities will reecive a purebred bull in even exchange for the scrub he has been using, the breeders of the state standing the difference in the value of the animals. "If this farmer receives his purebred with all due ceremony from the Burlington special train when it stops in his town, and he is the only man so honored in his community, his neighbors are going to watch the success of his dairy business," says Mr. Frost.

"The outcome of all this encouragement for better dairy sires will be that Nebraska people will become more interested in dairying, the breeders of the state believe. And, being more interested, the farmers who have been growing into the dairy business will breed up herds of higher producing cows, take better care of them, and pay more attention to the marketing of their products. We breeders expect this improvement to last over a period of years, not to be an overnight revolution, but a gradual, progressive development."

Improvement Noted in Illini Since First Practice

UNABLE TO DECIDE ON THE BACKFIELD

Coach Zuppke Has So Much Good Material That Picking a Team Is Problem—Arrive Here Next Friday.

URBANA, Ill., Sept. 27.—The second week of football practice at the University of Illinois ends this afternoon when Coach Zuppke gives his candidates another long session. Much improvement can be noted in the work of the Illini since the beginning of the practice season and from present indications Illinois should prove strong contenders for conference honors this fall.

But four days next week will be available in which to prepare for the Nebraska game next week-end, as the Illini will entrain for Lincoln on Thursday evening. As a result Coach Zuppke will give them an easy one on Thursday. The Illini will arrive in Lincoln Friday afternoon and likely go thru a limbering up workout on the Nebraska field.

It is a problem just who will be selected to work in the opening game. Zuppke has been changing his men around constantly during the past two weeks in order to see just what they can do. The veteran backfield composed of McIlwain, Harry Hall, Red Grange and Earl Britton may go in against the Cornhuskers, while on the other hand the Illini mentor may decide to try out Gallivan, Dancey and Leonard.

Illinois will depend on Grange considerable again this fall. The plucky halfback has been going at a fast clip in practice sessions and he should be as good if not better than last season, but it is going to be hard going as he will be watched very closely by opponents. Zuppke has been drilling his candidates on the forward pass and this may be resorted to in case Grange finds the going tough.

It would not be surprising to see Captain Rokusek and Kassell holding down the end jobs against Nebraska with Dick Hall and Brown at tackles, and Shively and Miller at guard. Roberts or Umnus will work at center.

The Illini will be given considerable signal drill during the next few days as they are a little weak in this department, especially the linemen.

That Harry Hall and Mush Crawford are eligible to play was the cheering news floating around the university of Illinois campus Friday. Both are veterans of last year and their eligibility to play means considerable to Coach Zuppke's team. Schultz also is expected to take an examination soon and in all probability he will soon be eligible also. Schultz is a full-back and may relieve Earl Britton considerably as Coach Zuppke says he is playing a great offensive game and hits the line with terrific force—Signal practice and new plays composed the principal work of the afternoon.

Frank Rokusek, the Omaha lad who is the captain of the Illinois this season was back again after laying off a day or two on account of not feeling well. Wallis McIlwain, backfield, is still out and it now looks as if he will be unable to work against Nebraska. The Illini mentor is much concerned over the game with Nebraska at Lincoln on October 4, and realizes his players need much improvement if they are going to down the Cornhuskers.

Judging from reports from Lincoln received here the game will likely develop into a speed test. Nebraska has a bunch of sophomore backs who can step lively and Nebraska is likely to give the Illini all they are looking for and perhaps a little more. It remains to be seen which backfield can step the faster.

To Play Regular Game.

A full game with varsity going against varsity was on the program for the Cornhuskers Saturday afternoon. Friday was spent principally in polishing up a forward passing attack. A blackboard has been placed on the west fence. Plays are diagrammed and explained at this board and immediately put into execution.

The eleven players who have been performing as Team A for the past several evenings were in their accustomed places Friday.

Mock scrimmage with a few minutes of the real article ended the session which was hampered somewhat by a high wind and light rain. There are no members of the squad no won the injured list, Trainer McLean reports.

YOUNGSTERS PLAY FOR GOLF TITLE

Bobby Jones, 20, Meets George Von Elm, 23, for National Amateur Championship—Hard to Pick Favorite.

MERION CRICKET CLUB, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 27.—With all the eastern and middle-western celebrities forced clear out of the tournament, the national amateur golf championship winds up here today with a battle between a 20 year old Georgian and a 23 year old Californian.

Survivors of more than a week of hectic golf, in which crowned heads were recapitated right and left, Bobby Jones, Atlanta, the former national open champion, and George Von Elm, Los Angeles, who is trying for his first title, will fight it out for the crown over thirty-six holes.

Von Elm in pushing thru the tournament, earned the reputation of a giant killer and he assumed the proportions of a real terror yesterday when he eliminated Max Marston, the defending champion, at 7 and 6.

Bobby Jones survived the semi-final round by giving Francis Ouimet, Boston, the worst beating of his long career. Jones won 11 and 10 and had no trouble doing it with brilliant golf. Ouimet had no game at all and won only two holes all day.

Experts were puzzled in trying to decide upon a favorite The two survivors are young but Jones has had much more experience. The young Bobby, however, has been pursued by a terrible jinx in amateur championships and even his most partisan supporters fear that he will have a run of bad golf today.

Von Elm has a good game, a valiant heart and a magnificent competitive disposition.

Threatening weather developed late in the morning and the weather bureau offered the threat of almost certain rain before the end of the day. Despite the uncertainty of the weather, a big gallery turned out for the morning round.

The two players exchanged greetings and spread large smiles when they arrived at the first tee.

The prospects of a close battle were carried out when they reached the fourth hole all square.

Yanks Trailing By Only One Game

Hope Not So Forlorn

Three Games Remain To Be Played

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—One down behind the speeding Washington Senators and with only three to go, the New York Yankees are almost back in the pennant race.

While their chances aren't any too promising, they are improved by at least one game.

While Alec Ferguson a Yankee cast off, was holding the Senators yesterday and giving the Red Sox a 2 to 1 victory, the Yankees were playing championship ball that could have been displayed to greater advantage recently in Detroit. The Yankees beat the Athletics 7 to 1 and closed up the gap by one full game.

Joe Dugan was hurt but his loss will not be fatal because Mike McNally can play the bag for a few days almost as well as Dugan can.

With a lead of only one game, the Senators now have to win their three remaining games to cinch the American league pennant. The two contending teams have three games each to play. If the Senators win all their remaining games and the Yankees are not beaten in Philadelphia, the pennant will go to Washington by one full game.

If the Senators lose one more game in Boston and the Yankees win three more the two teams will finish in a tie and they will have to play it off in three extra games.

If the Senators lose two more games to the Red Sox and the Yankees win three from the A's, the New Yorkers will take the pennant.

After a day of rest, the National league rivals will get back at it today.

The Giants start a three game series with the floundering Philadelphia Phils and the Brooklyn Robins have a two game date with the Boston Braves. The Giants can cinch the pennant by winning two of their remaining games. It is likely that they will do that.

Western Closing With Great Fight for Top Batting Honors—Babe Ruth Sets Pace in American.

In the Western league the season was winding up with a close fight on for the batting leadership between Miller of St Joseph and Lelivelt of Tulsa, according to the latest averages available, which include games played Tuesday, September 23. Miller was then hitting .381, while Lelivelt's mark was .379 Gingiardi of Denver, had climbed up to third place and was but three points behind Lelivelt

Lamb and Washburn of Tulsa were in the fight in a measure to lead the Western hitters. Washburn had the honors of heavy slugger cinched, with his forty-four home runs and his total of 429 bases.

In team batting Tulsa was leading over Denver by a wide margin, the figures being .324 and 309 respectively. Tulsa had scored over 1,200 runs in 161 games played and Denver was a hundred runs behind that mark. Tulsa had scored nearly 500 runs more than Des Moines, the weak team of the league in hitting and run getting

Among the western pitchers George Blaeholder of Tulsa, was leading with fifteen victories and six defeats, but he had pitched less than 200 innings. Lee of Omaha, with 308 innings pitched, was close behind Blaeholder in percentage, with twenty-four victories and but ten defeats.

Ruth Leads in American.

With the season practically closed, honors for batting and pitching in the American league are pretty well established In batting, Babe Ruth will lead his league, but with a reduced percentage. The figures that include games played Wednesday last, there being no games played Thursday, give Ruth a mark of .379, five points over Stephenson of Cleveland, whose claim would be disputed anyway were he to top the Bambino, since he has played in less than half the games of the schedule Jamieson of the Indians has shoved himself ahead of Falk of the White Sox by six points for the honor of being runner up, to Ruth.

Team batting averages show Cleveland with a lead of three points over all competitors. The feature in this particular has been the advance of the Washington team, which as it has made its desperate stand for championship honors has laid the wood against the ball until it has a team average of .294, which lies it with the Browns of St. Louis for second place in team batting. New York, the pennant contender, rests in fourth place as a hitting team showing how times have changed in the American league. And the Yankees are first in team fielding, an honor which they probably do not care so much about.

Eddie Collins did not increase his base stealing mark and by the latest set of averages rested at 42, enough however, to put him in a class by himself in the theft department. Ruth's home run record remained stationary at 46. He is shy two of 200 hits and will have to hustle to make that mark.

Thru his persistent efforts to keep Washington on top to the end, Walter Johnson raised his total of games won to 23. Of course he stands in a class by himself as a strike out pitcher. Holloway of Detroit was running second to Johnson in percentage of victories

Hornsby Dropping Some Points.

Batting averages of the National league that include games played Thursday show that Rogers Hornsby had dropped a point below .420, which was the mark he was shooting at to equal the high record set by modern major batters—Cobb and Sisler. Hornsby has dropped pretty steadily since he came back to work after being out with a strained back, but he will finish the season with well over .400 as his batting percentage. He has a chance to beat out Jack Fournier as the home run king of the National, as he is but two behind the Brooklyn first sacker and his former comrade on the Cardinals. Fournier has 27 homers and Hornsby 25. Williams of Philadelphia has 23. Hornsby leads by a wide margin in total bases hit for.

The Giants, in spite of the tight pitching they faced in the Pittsburgh series, which put the Pirates out of it, maintain their .300 batting percentage as a team and with nothing but games against the Phillies to face should maintain that or even better it. The Giants now have the impressive total of 846 runs scored, which gives their prospective opponents in a world's series something to think about. In fielding, the Giants show their class by ranking second to Boston. That may not be a special honor, since the lowly Braves set the pace, but it is something to record. Oddly enough the Phillies, near as lowly as the Braves, rank third in fielding, next to the Giants.

Dazzy Vance ran into a losing streak during the past week or so and having dropped two games now has a total of six defeats charged to him, but there will be no pitcher near him in the number of games won. Yde remains the leader in percentage of games won, but might even lose that honor to Vance if things break against him in the games remaining to be played from the time these figures were compiled. Yde's third defeat of the season came at the hands of the Giants on September 24, was the first time the Giants had beaten him this season and practically put his team out of the pennant race.

SOLONS DROP TWO MORE TO WICHITA

Ninth Inning Rally in First Game Falls Short After Six Runs Shoved Across—Denver-Omaha Win.

WICHITA, Kas., Sept 26. Lincoln dropped two more battles to Wichita here Friday losing a pair of loose ball games, 16 to 12 and 8 to 4. The failure of the Lincoln hurlers to hold the Izzies and some poor support contributed to their fourth straight loss here in two days. As in the first day's work, the Solons showed little ambition and once the Izzies got ahead the fight was out of their systems. The Solons gained a three-run lead off Jolly in the first inning of the first game when L. Stanton, a Wichita boy, former amateur leaguer here, worked for Lincoln Stanton got off to a bad start but settled down and for three innings hurled nice ball. He "blew" however, and Grover had to come to his aid. The Izzies slugged his offerings just as freely and soon had a commanding lead In the ninth the Solons put on a six run rally but failed to overcome the Izzie advantage. The games were hampered by a high wind which made good fielding precarious and caused many extra base hits. Score:

Lincoln	300	030	006	—12	16 1
Wichita	300	015	42x	—15	16 1

Will Thorp Drain Follow Dad's Steps

Remember way back when Ralph Drain was playing football for University of Nebraska? That was along in 1900. Drain was considered one of the best in his day. He has a son Thorp Drain, who is a sophomore at University of Chicago, and who has drawn attention his way because of the shrewd manner in which he handles a team and by his ability to snag passes. The Chicago Tribune commented on his ability Thursday morning.

The younger Drain is named for his grandfather, T. J. Thorp, who lives in Lincoln

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Coarse grains finished strong and higher, wheat lower on the board of trade today.

After reaching new high ground on the crop, heavy realizing developed in wheat and final figures were shaved off a fraction below the opening. Export business reached the three million bushel mark in wheat.

Corn made the greatest gain in the coarse grain market, but sagged under heavy profit sales. Reports of low temperatures and scattered frosts and forecast for general frost over the week end in that section kept buyers in the pit.

Oats was dull and lagged behind corn. Export sales however, kept the market in high ground.

Provisions was higher with hogs and grains.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Grain futures scored fractional advances at start of business on the board of trade today.

Strong Liverpool opening reflecting on wheat sentiment. The English market opened sharply higher and closed after additional gains.

Rain and cooler weather sent corn up. The country offered corn freely on bulges.

Relative cheapness and some export business, together with a light movement sent oats up.

Provisions opened steady.

Northwest Conditions.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 27.—The threshing of grain stopped for two or three days the latter part of last week, owing to heavy rains. Since that time the weather has cleared and conditions permitting, farm work will be resumed as rapidly as possible.

A marked effect of the rains is shown in some grain now coming onto the market. It has been reduced several grades, more so in the northern districts, as much of it is damp, sprouted or bleached.

In the north central part of North Dakota the later threshed wheat also shows the effects of rust. Some of it is shrunken and light in weight. The early frosts also affected it to some extent.

The bad condition of the roads has stopped the hauling of grain in places and there is only a moderate movement to country elevators at present.

Not much progress has been made by the corn crop since a week ago. A considerable portion is dented, but is maturing very slowly at this late season. There will probably be a very uneven crop, a small percentage will mature properly, while the balance will be of lower grades and a large part of it fed, instead of coming onto the market.

Very little threshing of late flax has been accomplished during the past week. The crop was cut just before the recent rains and has not dried out. The quality of the late seed will also show some deterioration. There are evidences of damage by frosts, to late flax.

The strong prices of all grains have been very satisfactory and beneficial to farmers who were forced to sell early, in order to obtain immediate funds.

As there will be little of interest to report each week on the northwestern crops from now on, this will be our last crop report of the season.—Lamson.

Lamson Bros. & Co.:A trading position appears advisable.

Ware & Co.: There appears to be accumulation on all dips

Post & Flagg say: There is evidence of trade switching to special shares with prospects of favorable developments.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: Would take advantage of recessions to purchase stocks for moderate profits.

Thomson-McKinnon: Suggest taking advantage of reactions on which to buy.—Lamson.

Grain Market Opinions.

Chicago Tribune: Wheat traders were mostly bullish last night and showed a disposition to buy on all breaks. The foreign situation is the most bullish in years. Continental Europe is in a bad way as to food supplie and the trade abroad is as bullish as it is in the United States. According to a message from New York, Germany will have to import 75,000,000 bushels rye. All that checks her purchases now is lack of credit. The department of agriculture indicating that a large part of the corn area required three weeks or more of good weather was the main influence in advancing corn. Export business: Wheat upwards of 500,000 bushels; rye, 200,000 bu.; oats, 250,000; barley, 100,000.

Journal of Commerce: The character of the buying in grains yesterday seemed to indicate further substantial advances before there is any important decline. The foreign situation remains very strong, while domestic conditions are far from weak. A board of trade membership sold yesterday at $8,500 net to the buyer.

Herald-Examiner: United States No. 2 hard wheat is underselling Canadian No. 1 northern 15 cents. There is little wonder, therefore, that Europe is centering its attention on the domestic grain. Influential buying is noted in the oats pit.—Lamson.

Stein-Alstrin: Further price advances are indicated.

Thomson-McKinnon: Only momentary recessions are likely in the market.

Bartlett Frazier & Co.: We expect higher prices.

Harris-Winthrop & Co.: We advise conservation on the bulges.—Lamson.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Stocks closed the week in impressive style. General strength characterized both the rail and industrial groups and a number of stocks [illegible] gains [illegible] in special stocks.

In Cast Iron Pipe and Nash Motors the upswing attained sensational proportions. Improvement went ahead in the steel and industrial stocks, while the forward movement in rails was [illegible] [illegible] by the leadership of Atchison.

So [illegible] was the showing of [illegible] August earnings that it made [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Atchison [illegible] spread throughout the railroad list, attaining particular vigor in the Frisco and Chicago Great Western issues.

The market closed irregular.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Further pronounced strength in special stocks featured the early dealings. Frisco issues reached new highs for the year, the preferred at 66⅝ and the common at 31, discounting the expected resumption of dividends on the senior issue next week.

Cast Iron Pipe continued its spectacular advance, achieving a record high at 115, against Friday's low of 108. Buying was largely by the Durant brokers.

Heading the list lighter-than-air craft will be the great silver Shenandoah, the largest dirigible ever seen in this country and the largest in the world aside from the ZR-3, which is to be delivered to the United States shortly by Germany.

In the heavier-than-air division will be the Barling Bomber, "Leviathan of the skies," which will fly each day of the race.

Notice to Contractors.

Men and Things

Henry Ford says that in the course of years the cow will become obsolete, and that a way will be found by which better milk can be manufactured by a machine than the cow can now turn out. He can visualize a great belt, we suppose, along which will stand a line of men, this one dropping in some hay, that one some mash, that one some oilcake, that one some corn and the others whatever else it is that they feed a cow nowadays, and out of a spigot at the other end will pou ra constant stream ol laceal fluid. If he ever does that Henry can be sure also of the milkmaid and hired man vote.

Another of the curious things that the Loeb-Leopold trial seems to have implanted in the public mind is the conviction that it is not possible for a person under twenty-one years of age to be a lawbreaker unless he is abnormal. We note also that there is some disposition on the part of those who have been discussing the matter to insist that another and necessary ingredient is that the parents of the accused must be rich. In spite of its reputed lack of intelligence the public is apt to take a direct road to a conclusion.

Free love is a manifestation of a lofty idealism we read in a pamphlet that seeks to inform us just how far ahead of us soviet Russia, under lunatic rule, has progressed. It is soul mate calling to soul mate, we are told, an effort to place marriage upon the high plane of spirit union. The sordid fact that soul mating in free love practice is largely a process whereby a man abandons a faded helpmate for one in the bloom of youth and is so patently a lust makes it impossible for decent people to receive or respect it. When you start to thinking that your soul is reaching out across the open seeking its mate, better call in a neurologist rather than begin pricing tickets to Hollywood.

The boys have developed a new menace in connection with automobile driving. They swarm out into the street when they are going somewhere and by signs and other means indicate to auto drivers that they would like to have a lift. This is dangerous, extremely dangerous. Parents ought to warn their children to quit making the street a thorofare for that purpose. Auto drivers whose kindness of heart is illustrated by their stopping and picking up the boys who do this are in fact encouraging the practice and increasing the menace.

Clarence Darrow's conscience must be troubling him. He rushes back to Chicago to help save a condemned to death poor boy just after he has succeeded, by his gift of eloquence and power of phrasing, in saving two rich boys from the same penalty. Our own guess is that he was fearful of what the people would say about his silence in the second case treading so fast upon the first. Does anybody suppose that if Darrow had not been hired to save the necks of Loeb and Leopold he would ever have been heard of in connection with volunteering to save Grant? Harsh maybe, but what about it?

The statistics have brought to our doors still another menace. If you wish to make reasonably sure of keeping your wife don't seek to get rich. According to the latest array of figures there are two divorces in the families of the rich and the well to do to one in those of the poor. In other words you have a better chance at a happy marriage if you are poor and marry a poor girl than if the marriage is showered and dowered with greenbacks. Love must have changed her habits if the old adage that depicted her slipping out of the door when poverty come in at the window is correct.

We haven't any use for Daugherty or his type of public official, but the fact sticks out very prominently that most of the witnesses who were secured by Senator Wheeler to make up his case against the former attorney general are of the kind that few people would have around the house or believe under oath. This fellow Means is rather typical of the most damaging witnesses produced in the investigation. Nobody would convict Daugherty of chicken stealing on his testimony, but apparently it is sufficient to hang him politically. It is no particular credit to us that we are lenient with our ordinary offenders against the law and merciless when it becomes a matter of politics.

No wonder we have tired business men, fer nineteen holes o' golf 'll wear anubuddy out. A feller 'll pay cash an' never grumble, but he never gits a bill that looks reasonable.
